PROBE HITS CITY HALL; U. S. QUESTIONS FORNEY

BOY, 13, ADMITS HE SLEW PLAYMATE; BODY HIDDEN

At the end of a 48-hour grilling George Simpson, 13, broke down and admitted today that he had killed his playmate, Michael Babish, 12, of Morgan, near Bridgeville, county detectives say. The shooting occurred in the Simpson boy's home in Traveskyn, on Thursday evening.

With his younger brother, Anthony, 11, George carried the body 300 yards, over a hill and hid the body in a clump of bushes where it was found Friday, according to the story obtained by the detectives. Both boys were turned over to the coroner and then released on their own recognizances.

The elder Simpson boy, one of six lads taken into custody, is said to have told Chief County Detective George W. Murren that the three boys were playing in the kitchen of the Simpson boys' home. Their mother, Mrs. Caroline Simpson Shoup, was absent. George was the robber and he obtained a revolver from a dresser in his mother's room. He flourished the revolver and it was discharged.

Frightened at the act, George and his brother carried the body over the hill and dumped it in the underbrush.

After the six boys were taken in custody all denied knowing any of the circumstances. George was questioned closely and the detectives were about ready to accept some other theory when they noticed that Anthony was continually crying. He refused however to "peach" on his brother, and then George finally broke. He said he had removed the cartridges from the revolver and thought it was empty.

After depositing the body in the bushes the boys returned to their home and replaced the revolver in the dresser, detectives were told. Mrs. Shoup, mother of the Simpson boys, visited her sons yesterday, but could get no information out of them. She said the dead boy was George's closest companion. County Detective R. L. McMillen was sent with the boys to Treveskyn to obtain the revolver.

Spray From Stirring of Graft Pool

Although closely watched by special bailiffs, the jury hearing the rum conspiracy cases had an enjoyable week-end. When the trials were started Judge Gibson ordered the jury sequestered in the Pittsburgher Hotel and that at all times they must be under the watchful eyes of the bailiffs.

Friday night the jurors attended a theater performance and on Saturday took a bus ride up the Mt. Washington roadway and through the Liberty tubes. They also were taken on a ride out the Boulevard of the Allies to Schenley Park. Yesterday morning eight of the jurors attended services in the First Presbyterian Church.

William Walkankos, Reedsdale street merchant, depended upon bulk sales to make his dividends in the moonshine racket. William testified in Federal Court today that while others about him were selling the stuff for 25 cents per gargle he assessed the trade only 15 cents "a shot."

If Louis Lipshitz, of 2250 Beaver avenue, had kept a diary, this is how it should have read for a period early in 1928: Friday, raided twice; Saturday, raided twice; Monday, raided only once; Tuesday, raided once. Ten times in all he was raided by Inspector Faulkner's aides, Mr. Lipshitz swore, and he wishes he had back all the dollars he has paid in fines.

Judge Gibson is losing his patience with those witnesses who don't respond when their names are called. He instructed Government Prosecutor Smith to issue attachments for the tardy ones.

They work fast on the North Side, John Mosel's testimony indicated. This Beaver avenue merchant testified that one day he saw Ward Chairman Herd for permission to sell; the next day a five-gallon can of stuff arrived.

HERD GRANTED RUM "PERMIT," TWO SAY AT FEDERAL TRIAL

Two portentous developments took place today in the federal government's attack on what it declares to be widespread police and political corruption involved in prohibition law violations.

One was the declaration of a witness at the trial of the North Side "rum ring" cases that his negotiations regarding the sale of liquor had taken place in the City-County Building.

The other development was the taking of Alfred W. Forney from jail to the Federal Building for questioning concerning certain cases. Forney, so-called slot machine king, last August pleaded no defense to conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and was sentenced to serve six months in jail, besides being fined $3,000. He promised the court to "tell all" to relieve his conscience, but so far had told nothing valuable, either to the federal investigators or, it is reported, to the county grand jury before

RADIO LOGS BEFORE VESTRIS PROBERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Arthur J. Costigan, of the Radio Marine Corporation, a subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, was recalled to the witness stand today when the government inquiry into the Vestris disaster, which took more than 100 lives, was resumed.

He was asked by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle if he had a file of the radio messages sent from the Vestris. He replied in the affirmative.

"Do the records show that any messages were sent out from the Vestris on Sunday, the day before the disaster?" Tuttle asked.

"No messages were sent by the ship on Sunday except the weather report, as far as our records show," Costigan replied.

This weather message was produced. Costigan could not read it because it was in code and H. G. Welland, third officer of the Vestris, was sworn in. Welland decoded the message. It said:

"Sunday noon. Moderate gale. Wind northeast."

O'NEILL GETS AIDES

Sitting on the bench with Commissioner Francis O'Neill, who is presiding at the hearing, were two nautical experts and advisors—Capt. E. P. Jessup, a graduate of the Naval Academy and a consulting engineer in New York, representing the United States government, and Capt. Henry McConkey, marine superintendent of the Cunard line, representing the British government.

These men were invited to act as advisors, to question witnesses, and suggest other witnesses. They will not, however, have any official court status, Commissioner O'Neill making the final findings alone.

Because of these radiograms and what Tuttle termed "other important evidence," resumption of the hearing was set ahead from Tuesday to 2 p. m. today.

NEW EVIDENCE IMPORTANT

The new evidence, Tuttle indicated, may determine whether Capt. William J. Carey, who went down with his ship, communicated directly with the Holt and Lamport offices in New York before authorizing the sending of an SOS. Tuttle has been searching for radio messages which might show that the owners instructed Capt. Carey to wait for the Voltaire, sister ship of the Vestris, instead of sending out a call for help on Sunday when the Vestris was in a serious condition.

COMPANY DENIES CHARGE

Tuttle believes he owners might have done this to save salvage fees, which would not have been necessary with the Voltaire doing the rescue work. The company has denied this charge.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

ONE HUNDRED years ago Franz Schubert died, greatest of all the world's song writers. Only 31, he died as he had lived, very poor, leaving the world richer, forever, by the works of his genius.

HIS deepest admiration was for Beethoven, and his dying words were "Beethoven is not here." Let us hope that he and his beloved Beethoven, and others that encouraged and befriended him, were together yesterday where "the angels do always behold the face of My Father," and heard his Symphony in C Major played by the New York Philharmonic, conducted by Mengelberg.

The radio could carry it everywhere on this planet. Why not as far as heaven, to which the ether surely extends?

UPON Schubert's life, teachers and preachers might base useful sermons. His father, a parish school master, gave him music lessons, but at seven, young Franz had passed his father. Of his six hundred songs, he wrote some of the most beautiful in his 'teens, "Gretchen at the Spinning Wheel" at seventeen, "Erl Koenig" at eighteen.

WORKS of genius poured from him in a stream. Hearing one of his own songs, he said, "That is not so bad." He forgot that he had written it.

Stopping at a tavern, on a walk, a friend recited some of Shakespeare's sonnets.

Schubert, on the tavern menu wrote his song, "Hark, Hark the Lark," and that evening wrote the music of "Who Is Sylvia?"

IN HIS last year he wrote "Death and the Maiden," and until he died he continued pouring out works of genius, songs, operas, quartets, quintets, symphonies.

He made many friends, all worth while, in ability and character. When a new acquaintance was suggested, his question, always was "Kann er 'was?" "Can he do anything?"

CONGRATULATIONS are due the men and women that arranged to honor his memory yesterday. From his grave, he sends to the world beauty and inspiration.

ADVOCATES of birth control may muse upon the fact that Schubert was the thirteenth in a family of fourteen children. Fortunately for the world, his strong mother, Elizabeth Fitz, did not think it necessary to stop at an even dozen.

DROPPING a few million miles from Schubert to the level of the Stock Exchange, did you notice that in five and a half days last week, brokers sold more than thirty-one million shares, above five million shares a day?

EXCHANGE authorities are getting ready for ten million share days, predicted in this column long since.

Little people, especially the foolish that gamble, should beware of that Wall Street maelstrom with the dollar marks on it. But unfortunately advice is wasted.

THE inexperienced, including many women, take "tips" from those more ignorant than themselves, and some will wish, when it's too late, that they had not listened.

HOWEVER, while some lose and others win, the money remains, only changing hands, and some of it, at least, is used admirably. Last year, two billions of dollars were spent on the public schools. Every dollar of that is worth a thousand to the country's future. And the expenditure will steadily increase, as it should.

Prof. Shayer, of Columbia, reminds you that national prosperity expands, as public school funds increase. In 1910 this country spent only 500 millions on public schools, last year, 2,000 millions. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be," and the public schools are the greatest progressive force.

AT the coronation of Ras Tafari, "King of Kings," with the additional title of "Lion of Judah and Elect of God," the kingdom of Ethiopia, better known as Abyssinia, celebrated most completely. The whole population, including the army, marched to the festive board in squadrons and platoons and feasted for seven days.

The king of kings was crowned by his aunt, behind a curtain, scene too sacred for common eyes.

And a little, buzzing squadron of fighting airplanes could wipe out all that Lion of Judah business in a few minutes.

BUT let us be humble, since our Uncle Sam is only a Ras Tafari on a bigger scale. He and his populations have been feasting at the stock exchange banquet for months, and it has been fine feasting.

A few squadrons of fighting planes could end all that. And, watching the ticker, we have not brains enough to realize it.

"OUR BEST FAMILIES" in New York, have been drinking "Bathtub Scotch," without knowing it.

WALL ST. HALTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Waves of selling, representing profit taking by large and small speculators, swept through the stock market today, checking the wild "bull" movement which broke all trading records in last week's market.

Losses of $1 to nearly $10 a share were distributed over a wide list, but they were interspersed with a sprinkling of sizeable gains.

Trading showed a tendency to turn dull on the declines. Orders were largely in small lots of 100 to 500 shares, with the result that the ticker again fell nearly an hour behind the market.

"Peaches" Browning Is Divorce Witness

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Mrs. Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning will appear in court here today as a witness in the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Edgar Allen against her husband. Allen is business manager of "Peaches" and Mrs. Allen charges he and "Peaches" fell in love. "Peaches" indignantly denies the charge. "Peaches" is the former Cinderella girl-bride of Edward W. ("Daddy") Browning, eccentric millionaire.

S. J. Jennings, Noted Mine Engineer, Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Funeral services will be held in All Angels Church here tomorrow for Sidney Johnston Jennings, noted mining engineer, who died from heart disease. He was a native of Hawkesville, Ky., and a graduate of Harvard and the University of California. Jennings' clubs included the Exchange, of Boston; Alta, of Salt Lake City; University, Bankers' and Harvard of New York.

Oldfield, Arkansas Congressman, Dies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Representative William A. Oldfield (Dem.), of Arkansas, died at Emergency Hospital this afternoon following an operation for gallstones. He was 54 years old, and after nearly 20 years' service in the House he had become the Democratic whip and chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

Judge Schoonmaker Abed With Influenza

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today was confined to his home in the Ruskin Apartments, Ruskin avenue, suffering from a slight attack of influenza. His physician said he would be absent from United States Court for several days.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, was confined to his home today with a chill. He has canceled all engagements for the next few days.

HOOVER OFF ON TOUR ABOARD BATTLESHIP

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover arrived here at 9:40 o'clock this morning from Palo Alto and went immediately aboard the battleship Maryland for his good-will trip to South America.

The President-elect was met at his train by Admiral William V. Pratt, commander-in-chief of the Pacific coast battle fleet, and a group of other naval officials who escorted him to the admiral's launch which put off immediately down the bay to the battleship. Five minutes later there were a series of booming blasts and various battleships in the harbor fired the presidential salute of 21 guns.

A few minutes before the arrival, the President-elect's train paused for two minutes at Wilmington, Cal., while a throng of school children cheered wildly at their first glimpse of the nation's next Chief Executive.

Hoover appeared on the platform of his car, smiled broadly and addressed a few words to the eager crowd of youngsters.

The train almost immediately got under way again and steamed into San Pedro near the harbor dock where the President-elect's good-will voyage to South American begins at sea.

DU PONT CUTS CASH AND STOCK MELON

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The E. I. DuPont de Nemours and Company today declared the regular dividend of $2.50 on the common stock, an extra dividend of $4.75, and called a meeting of stockholders to split up the stock on the basis of 3½ to 1.

It was stated the dividend rate of the new stock would be probably $4 a share.

Of the extra dividend of $3.55 represents the proceeds of the General Motors dividend received by the company, the other dollar coming from the Dupont company's earnings.

Both dividends are payable to stockholders of record December 1. The regular dividend of $2.50 a share is payable December 15 and

WORLD SCIENTISTS HERE TO STUDY COAL

Not only synthetic gasoline, kerosene and lubricating oils are now being extracted from coal, delegates to the Second International Conference on Bituminous Coal, at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, were informed today, but even soap is being made of it.

Carl Krauch, director of the German Dye Trust, told of these developments. He was introduced by Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company, of New Jersey, which has acquired the American rights to the Bergius process of making gasoline from coal.

INCREASING PRODUCTION

At present, Krauch said, his company is making 40,000 tons of gasoline a year from coal, but by the end of next year plans to increase annual production to 250,000 tons.

In the process of liquefying coal the dye trust found large quantities of paraffin on its hands. Fatty acids were extracted from this substance and used in the manufacture of soap.

In opening the conference Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, prophesied that people living in the coal regions will achieve "a happier economic and social condition" through the development of new uses for coal.

WELFARE CANVASS ARMY SWEEPS CITY

In tens of thousands of homes in Allegheny county today the black and gold window flag of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh tells of contributions made for the joint support of 25 local philanthropies. The emblems were placed there yesterday in token of subscriptions made to solicitors who carried the message of charity through the house-to-house canvass in the Welfare Fund.

Official reports of the progress of the canvass made today at a meeting of the workers in the William Penn Hotel revealed that $109,323.45 had been subscribed over the week-end bringing the grand total to $510,710.91.

Fair weather yesterday was a handicap to city house-to-house workers, who found many persons absent from home, but clear skies proved a boon to the rural solicitors, who reported 100 per cent sub-

NO MOVIES IN MURDER TRIAL; FILM DESTROYED

There will be no motion pictures to portray for jurors in Criminal Court how Mike Yarsavage, 38, a coal miner of Nant-y-Glo, Pa., was beaten to death in Indiana township last March. The films were destroyed in the fire that swept the Cameo Building some months ago.

County detectives announced last week that pictures of the murder being re-enacted would be shown at the trial of Joseph Bassetti, John Micklow, John Koneski, Fred Sisinetti, Alex Simon, John Kubic, Louis Branzet and Julius Frank, all of Indiana Township, scheduled to open today.

George Dawson, who had photographed the scenes of the murder, today said the films had been destroyed along with his other photographic equipment in the Cameo fire.

THE Baltimore and Ohio, progressive railroad, orders clocks run by radio. Not necessary to make any allowance for distance in such clocks. Not enough to make you miss your Baltimore and Ohio flier.

AMERICA'S cotton-growing regions will be interested, mildly, in a new "cheaper" cotton, developed in England.

A small bird, weaving her nest in British Guiana, supplied the idea, using fibre from a plant that now thrives in England and already yields three or four million pounds a year.

THE new cotton costs only 12 cents a pound, the plant grows seven feet high, and is "stripped." It is not a blossom cotton.

Only the coarsest grades of cotton can be made from it, however, and experience teaches that substitutes are more numerous than successful.

BANK BOOKS MAY BARE BOSSES

City police took their toll from the Louisiana State Lottery, now being investigated by the county graft grand jury, a witness revealed today.

James A. Murray, who it was testified was one of the trio directing the lottery, brought from Philadelphia as a probe witness, talked freely with county detectives. He is said to have named one former city detective as a collector of the levy. Both on the train, while coming from Philadelphia, where he was arrested Saturday, and in the ante-room of the grand jury chamber, Murray is said to have revealed much of the inside workings of the lottery, admitting his rakeoff was $500 a week. He was expected to repeat these stories under oath. He entered the grand jury room shortly before noon.

On evidence gleaned by the probers, county detectives raided an alleged lottery headquarters, 2603 Wylie avenue, today, arrested Allen Gatewood and Charles Ross, Negroes, said to be proprietors, and 10 other Negroes. They seized tickets, a small sum of money and a pamphlet describing operation of the lottery which offered "$7 for 1 cent." The Negroes were taken before the grand jury.

Harold L. Cameron, bookkeeper of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company, armed with a lot of ledgers and papers, was the first of the banker witnesses heard today and other bankers are to follow in the checkup of racketeer bank accounts.

On Saturday, Judge J. B. Drew, sitting as a committing magistrate, held Mrs. Mary Shafer and Henry C. Reicker, alleged heads of the Louisiana lottery, and ordered the arrest of Murray. They were to have been given a hearing today, but because Samuel Rosenberg, counsel for Mrs. Shafer, was busy in the federal booze conspiracy trials, the hearing went over until tomorrow.

scriptions in many outlying districts.

City workers who had started at the zero hour at 2 p. m. again took up the task last night and in some districts continued until almost midnight to conclude their rounds. Louis E. Reineman, chairman of the city canvass, and Mrs. W. B. Schiller, vice chairman, instructed their ward and district chairmen to keep up the work until the end of the week until every home in the respective districts shall have been visited. "A Welfare Fund window flag in every home in Allegheny county by Thanksgiving Day" is the campaign slogan.

At today's meeting G. G. Coolidge presided and an address was made by Frank Davis Preston, secretary in the western district for the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania.

TWO TESTIFY OF RUM LEAK

which he had been haled recently in its investigations. A pardon had been recommended for him by U. S. District Attorney Meyer, who later withdrew the recommendation without explanation for either action.

In the City-County Building, one trial witness said, he conducted negotiations with William Herd, Republican chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, to open a moonshine joint and subsequently, without further negotiations, moonshine was delivered to him and he opened up.

Herd was also seen in his public garage by another bootlegger, according to the testimony, and a short time later moonshine was delivered to the bootlegger and he opened a joint.

Police Inspector Charles Faulkner of the North Side was accused at the trial by two witnesses who declared they were excluded from doing business after raids. They said Faulkner told them they were not "buying enough" and could not reopen. A singular tale of police persecution was placed in the record.

Herd and Faulkner were directly charged with complicity in the alleged extensive North Side conspiracy for the first time today. Their names were added to those of State Assemblyman Samuel J. Grenet, chairman of the Twenty-seventh Ward, and John J. O'Donnell, chairman of the Twenty-second Ward, also named by government witnesses in connection with the moonshine racket in three wards reached in the trial.

VISITED HERD

John Bucher testified that he wanted to open up at 1927 Beaver avenue and went to see Herd in the City-County Building. He asked Herd for permission to open and Herd said, "I have nothing to do with the police, but if you keep on the right side it may me all right," the witness testified.

Two weeks later, without any further negotiation, Bucher said, moonshine was delivered to him and he opened up.

Daniel "Harp" McLaughlin, described by previous witnesses as the head of the moonshine distribution in the ward and as a frequent associate of Herd, collected for the moonshine, Bucher said. It was delivered by Eugene Cappi, who testified for the government about his connection with the dealings of McLaughlin.

Corroboration of the meeting with Herd was given by Joseph A. Salenski, of 1 Halsey place, credit manager for a business corporation in Pittsburgh, who testified that he knew Bucher and Herd and introduced them in the City-County Building. He testified he heard Herd say, "I have nothing to do with the police," but heard nothing further of the conversation. He identified Herd in the courtroom and said he knew him for 15 years.

John Novosel, of 1926 Beaver avenue, said he went to the Keystone garage and asked Herd, "If I could open a saloon," and Herd replied, "I'll see." The next day a five-gallon can of moonshine was delivered to him and he opened up, he said.

McLaughlin collected for the deliveries, first at $3 and later at $4 a gallon, and he had not known McLaughlin but "took a chance he was the right man," the witness said.

Later Arnold Thornberg collected, and deliveries were made by "Eugene." Novosel said near beer from the Fort Pitt Brewery, he said. This brewery is largely owned by Grenet, it is reputed, and delivered to many of the witnesses, they said.

WITNESS NOT SURE

Novosel said he went to Herd because "I thought him the right man to see, as he was the ward chairman." Herd was asked by Government Counsel Ralph H. Smith to stand up, and asked the witness if he could identify him, over the objection of defense counsel.

"I am not sure whether that is Herd or not; I only saw him once," the witness said.

Louis Lipshitz, now of Fullerton street, testified he sold moonshine at his confectionery store at 2250 Beaver avenue, purchased from McLaughlin, who, he said, told him, "We will give you lots of chance; you must buy from us and everything will be all right." McLaughlin collected first at $3 a gallon and later at $4, according to the witness. He also bought Fort Pitt beer, he said. He testified some time later McLaughlin came to him and said, "You are not buying enough and I have orders you must take these 10 gallons." The witness said he declined to take it, and McLaughlin told him, "I'm only working for others; see Faulkner."

Lipshitz said he was raided two days later and fined $5 and after the hearing Faulkner held him in a cell. "He called me a lot of names and told me I did not buy enough, that I had bought from others." Faulkner brought Lieut. Lynch and another lieutenant into the cellroom and he was threatened, he said. After "six weeks when he lived with his family like monkeys in a cage," because afraid to reopen his store, he finally reopened it on a Friday. He was raided by police twice Friday, twice Saturday and once each Monday and Tuesday, and he finally gave up, he said, testifying that he was not taken to the station, as no "booze" was found in the series of raids.

"FORCED TO BUY RUM"

Harry Liberman, now of 1131 North Lang avenue, said he conducted a grocery and confectionery at 2230 Beaver avenue. McLaughlin came to him, he testified, and said he should "buy some green stuff, everybody around here is doing it." Liberman said he had to buy, and he bought two five-gallon cans a week, and also sold Fort Pitt near beer, he said, testifying that McLaughlin collected for the moonshine.

Police "knocked him off" on a Sunday, and he was held for court. After the hearing, Faulkner, he said, told him to stay closed, and that they would "not let him around here." He opened Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was raided at 2:15, he said. Nothing was found and he was discharged. He said he went to Herd, who said, "I can't do anything for you." McLaughlin told him "You are not buying enough," he said, testifying that he had been buying two 5-gallon cans a week.

On cross-examination, Defense Counsel Charles B. Pritchard asked Liberman, "Didn't you come to me and say Faulkner would not let you do any business because you sold whisky and you would have to get an injunction to open, and didn't you tell me you would get even?" The witness denied saying this.

Charles A. Heck, a printer, employed by the C. M. Rodgers Company, identified Elliott Donley, one of the defendants, as the man who ordered the calling cards bearing the names "Joe Green" and "Jack Burke." Testimony has been given that the rum ring's business solicitors gave customers cards bearing these names. The government contends that these were false names.

the extra dividend of $4.75 on January 5.

The special meeting of the stockholders was called for December 14 when they will be asked to authorize a new issue of 15,000,000 shares of stock with a par value of $20 a share in place of 5,000,000 shares.

The board of directors was increased from 31 to 33 members and one of the new places was filled by the election of T. S. Grasselli, of the Grasselli Chemical Company of Cleveland.

In announcing the dividend actions, the Dupont Company gave out this statement:

"The extra of $4.75 is to the extent of $3.55 a distribution of the extra dividend of $2.50 on the General Motors common stock held by the Dupont Company in the ratio of nearly one and a half shares of General Motors for each share of Dupont common, this ratio being slightly reduced due to the issuance now in process of 149,392 shares of Dupont common in connection with the consolidation of the Grasselli Chemical Company with the Dupont Company.

"If the recently announced plan to split General Motors shares two and one-half for one, DuPont will then hold approximately one share of General Motors for each of its own shares outstanding, thus changing the relationship between DuPont's General Motors holdings and its own common stock from the present ratio of about one and one-half to one to that of approximately share for share."

MAYOR SPURS ROTHSTEIN PROBE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Facing probable demotion unless able to "produce some facts" in the Arnold Rothstein murder by noon today, high officials of the New York police department concentrated their energy this morning in searching for George ("Hump") McManus, former associate of Rothstein.

It is conceded by all authorities interested in the solution of the murder of Rothstein that "Hump" is the man who can tell who fatally wounded Rothstein and why.

So far, however, McManus has been able to elude the best detectives on the force, and it is this lack of success on the part of the department that caused Mayor James J. Walker last week to allow the department until today "to produce or admit they can't."

Every known haunt of McManus on Broadway was searched thoroughly yesterday, but all of his known hangouts have been watched carefully since the shooting, so little hope was held out for his capture here.

statement issued last night that officials of the line here received no message from Capt. Carey until after they had asked him what his trouble was. He asserted that Tuttle was "wasting his time" in attempting to uncover such a message.

Tuttle announced last night that all radio messages picked up by the Voltaire while the Vestris was in distress are in his hands.

Charles Verchere, third radio operator of the Vestris, testified last week that a preliminary distress message saying "We may need assistance" was sent from the Vestris to all ships shortly before the SOS was flashed.

Capt. Henry McConkey, marine superintendent of British steamship lines in New York, will participate in the inquiry today at the suggestion of the British government. Commissioner O'Neill, acting on Tuttle's recommendation, will name a nautical expert to represent the United States.

MRS. BATTEN MRS. DEVORE

Once more, in New York, Mrs. Earl Devore and Mrs. Norman Batten, who started so carefreely to South America aboard the SS. Vestris with their husbands, both automobile racers, have met. This time they mourn in common the deaths of both men, lost in the Vestris sinking, in which both women were rescued.

SEAT RUSH FOR WELFARE SHOW BRINGS NEW RULE

Because of the great demand for seats for the midnight show to be given at the Stanley Theater next Friday night, November 23, by the Variety Club of Pittsburgh, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for the benefit of the Welfare Fund, those who have asked that seats be reserved for them are urged to call for them at once. Seats not called for by 5 p. m. tomorrow will be disposed of to other patrons.

Theater managers met today to arrange the program. General Chairman Eugene L. Connelly and D. A. Harris, of the Variety Club's committee, met with the following vice chairmen: Frank W. Buhler, Earl Crabb, John H. Harris, William Finney, Harry Brown and John B. Reynolds. At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that satisfactory progress was being made, and that there was every assurance that the entertainment would be a huge success.

Helen Wright, soprano at the Penn, is one of numerous performers who have expressed their willingness to contribute their services to the midnight show. Miss Wright said today she would be pleased to sing for the benefit of the Welfare Fund.

The best acts from all the theaters will enter into the show, which will be a long one.

All seats are reserved, and they sell at $1, regardless of location. Tickets may be bought at the Grand Theater and also the Sheridan Square.

Farm Home Is Saved From Fire by 100 Men

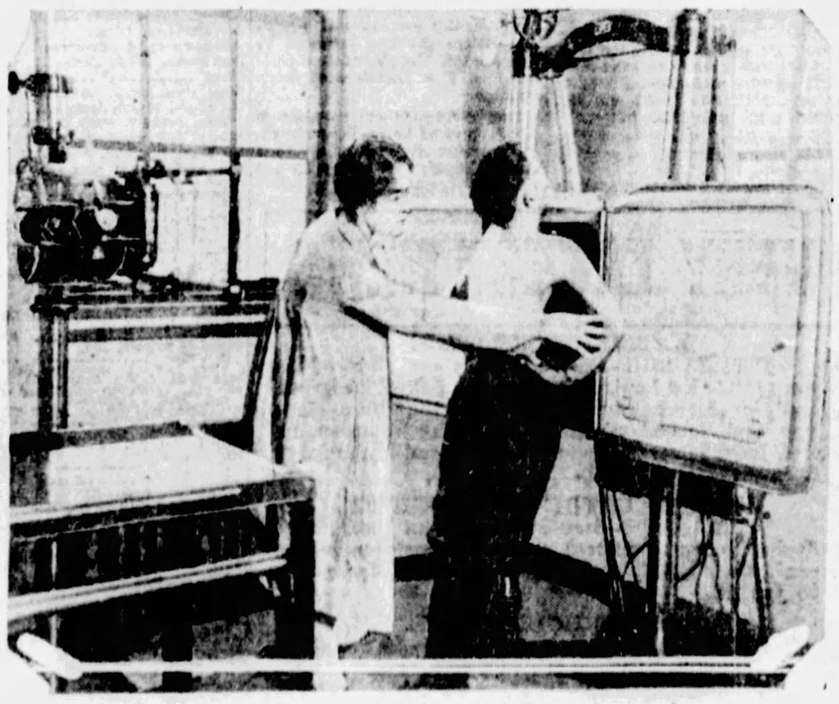
SCOTTDALE, Pa., Nov. 19.—One hundred men aided in saving buildings on the farm of Mrs. William Brooks from destruction by fire yesterday. Manning a pumper of the Scottdale fire department, they drew water from a nearby stream and extinguished the flames, which started in outbuildings and threatened the homestead.

MAN-MADE AND NATURE'S SUNS VIE IN TREATING SICK

At Tuberculosis League Hospital

TREATMENTS WITH POWERFUL RAYS

Artificial sunlight plays an important role in the treatment of tuberculosis cases at the Tuberculosis League Hospital, Bedford avenue. Here are two patients in the "artificial sun room." Mary Catherine is having the powerful rays directed to her back while the young woman is receiving throat treatment through a quartz tube which concentrates the light rays.



MOST MODERN X-RAY

The Tuberculosis League's new hospital which will be ready for occupancy about the first of the year, will be equipped with the very latest in X-ray equipment. Here is a patient placed before the apparatus for lung examination by Miss Winnifred Egbert, bacteriologist. This X-ray is almost instantaneous with the new Coolidge tube equipment.

TREATMENTS WITH NATURE'S SUNLIGHT

Fresh air and sunlight are science's greatest aid in the treatment of tuberculosis cases. In the woman's ward today, all windows along the front are kept open day and night, the patients breathing the fresh air and during the day they receive the direct rays of the sun. In the new building, a sun bath room equipped with the new vita-glass permits the entrance of the ultra-violet rays which will not pass through ordinary window glass.

PROFESSOR KILLED RUNNING ELEVATOR

EDUCATOR ON JOB ONLY 3 DAYS

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—An absent-minded professor plunged to his death down an elevator shaft yesterday, and the following notation was made in the coroner's records:

"Daniel J. Ellingsen, 41, 241 Smalley court; fell down elevator shaft; Chicago avenue police."

Ellingsen was the elevator man of an apartment at 14 Elm street. It wasn't much of a job for a man who had been graduated from three colleges in Norway, who was a post graduate alumnus of the University of Chicago, the holder of M. S. and M. A. degrees, a teacher of languages and an authority on the Bible. Not much of a job for a college professor; but even professors must eat, and in Ellingsen's case there were three motherless youngsters to be thought of, too.

SCHOLAR IN LANGUAGES

Prof. Ellingsen got the elevator job four days ago. He had been an instructor of languages at Luther College, Decorah, Ia., until the courses he taught were discontinued last year. He also taught at Clifton Lutheran College, Clifton, Tex.

When his professional position at Luther College was abolished, Ellingsen came to Chicago, seeking a new educational connection. His three children were sent to live with relatives while he sought employment. Finding nothing in his professional line, Prof. Ellingsen got the job as elevator man last week.

STUDIED LONG ABROAD

Former associates at Luther College recalled him as a solitary man who avoided intimate friendships and often expressed mystification over the American philosophy of life. Born in Chicago, Ellingsen had spent most of his life abroad, studying. He served as principal of a school at Kabelvaag, Norway, before returning to America in 1913.

He reported at the Elm street apartment building for work punctually yesterday. It wasn't a job that seemed to require much thought. Absent-mindedly, Prof. Ellingsen opened the elevator door and stepped through.

The elevator was not there.

FOOTBALL TILT ENDS IN TEARS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Tear gas was used and three persons were arrested before a squad of 20 policemen could quell a riot which abruptly ended a football game between two amateur teams here yesterday.

Police were called when the spectators, estimated at 3,000, surged onto the field near the end of a game between the Auburns of Cambridge, and the Assumptions of East Boston, and engaged in a free-for-all fight in which players joined. While the crowd was being dispersed, a police inspector arrested Dennis Ryan, 21, and John Ferguson, 19, both of Cambridge, charged with disturbing the peace. Ferguson's wife was arrested, charged with assaulting a police officer and with resisting arrest.

When the police had left more than 100 individuals in the crowd started the fight all over again. This time the headquarters riot squad was called. The officers arrived equipped with tear gas bombs and pistols and finally cleared the field by discharging one of the pistols.

CAPPER HERE TOMORROW

United States Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow, coming here to address a gathering of local business men in Memorial Hall tomorrow night. The meeting is being held under the joint auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Retail Druggists' Association, the Pittsburgh Retail Hardware Dealers' Association, the Pittsburgh Jewelry Trade Association and the Retail Grocers' Association.

With Senator Capper will be Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Braddock. They will speak on the Capper-Kelly bill, which will come before the next Congress. Senator Capper will address the Pittsburgh Advertising Club at a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium at noon tomorrow.

Train Hits, Fatally Injures Duryea Man

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Struck by a Lehigh Valley freight engine on a crossing early yesterday morning, Frederick Naylor, 47, of Duryea, was so badly injured that he died later at a hospital in Taylor. Naylor was on his way home and is said to have stepped directly in front of the locomotive.

Another Summer Day in Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Summer weather prevailed here again yesterday as the mercury mounted to 76 degrees and equaled the November record established on the same date in 1921. Twice last week the official record for the corresponding day of the month was broken.

CHEBATORIS TOMIKEL J. SIMPSON G. SIMPSON

After 48 hours of grilling by county detectives, George Simpson, 13, confessed that he shot and killed his playmate, Michael Rabish, 13, in the kitchen of the Rabish home, Morgan Hill, near Bridgeville, when the two and Anthony Simpson, 11, a brother, were playing "robbers" with a .32-caliber revolver. The brothers, they confess, carried the body a half mile and hid it in bushes.

LOTT M'MILLAN

Recent target practice by the neighborhood boys led police to suspect the lad had been shot and playmates, afraid to tell, had hidden the body. Here Detective Robert McMillan and State Police Corporal M. G. Lott examine a broken .22-caliber rifle found in a shed at the home of Frank Palmer, 15, rounded up along with other playmates of Michael's.

WHERE BOY'S BODY WAS FOUND

The confession of the two Simpsons came suddenly after police held two other theories. Other boys held for questioning were Michael Chebatoris, 15; Joseph Tomikel, 13, and John Aponas, 14. In this copse, in which Rabish often hunted and trapped, his body was found in a clump of bushes.

GEORGE T. FLEMING, 74, PGH. HISTORIAN, DIES

George Thornton Fleming, 74, retired newspaper man and author, died yesterday in his home at 526 Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington. Mr. Fleming was an authority on Pittsburgh history and had written books on the subject.

For 17 years he conducted a department on the old Pittsburgh Gazette Times, a weekly feature on historical sketches.

He retired three years ago and since that time he was working on a biography of Erasmus Wilson, "The Quiet Observer," a fellow writer on the Gazette Times.

Mr. Fleming was born in San Francisco and came here when a child. He graduated from a high school that occupied the site of the present Mellon National Bank and later attended Baldwin College, Berea, O. For a while he worked in the fire alarm office and later in the produce business. He later taught school in New Florence, Pa., and in Philadelphia.

During his newspaper career he was editor of the Pittburgh Life. He also was author of "Elem's Fancies in Poetry and Prose;" "My High School Days," and many other books. He also compiled the "Life and Letters of Gen. Alexander Hays" and had written the "History of Pittsburgh and Environs."

He was a member of the Authors' Club of Pittsburgh; Western Pennsylvania Historical Society; Historical Society of Pennsylvania; Ohio Valley Historical Association; Pennsylvania Society of New York; Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution; Dallas Lodge No. 508, F. and A. M.; Park Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Duquesne Council, Independent Order of Americans.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Fleming and a son, Horace B. Fleming. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at his home and burial will take place in the Allegheny Cemetery.

Policeman Fires Into Crowd at Taunt

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A Brooklyn policeman was arrested last night on a charge of firing his service revolver into a group of men whom police said had passed a remark about the policeman when he passed.

Peter Mitchell, 40, a carpenter, was struck in the abdomen by the bullet, and hospital physicians said his condition was critical.

Police said Mitchell told them Patrolman John F. Carney, 27, a member of the police force for four years, passed the group, from which a remark was passed, turned and fired. Mitchell said he had nothing to do with the remark that was passed.

After an examination, a police surgeon said Carney was intoxicated. He was suspended and held on a charge of felonious assault.

Woman Kills Self With Kin at Church

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Miriam Barbara Furst, wife of Shuman Furst, of Flemington, a suburb of Lock Haven, was found dead in the bathroom of her home Sunday by her husband, upon his return from taking his daughter to Sunday school. Death was caused by a bullet wound in her chest from a .32 caliber revolver. Despondency over ill health is supposed to have been the cause.

GIRL'S MURDER BAFFLES POLICE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 19.—State and county police were up against a stone wall in attempting to unravel the mystery surrounding the murder of Emma Alley, 16 lured from her Five Points School Home Friday night and murdered nearby. Boy and girl friends of the dead girl, whose body, with the head submerged in a small stream, was found by hunters Saturday, have been questioned, but none could throw light on the murder. She had been struck on the head with a club or heavy stone, within a short time after she arose from her bed in answer to the honking of an automobile horn.

Cent Costs Child of WRNY Owner Life

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A 3-year-old girl was fatally injured by a taxicab Sunday when she darted away from the nurse, while crossing West End avenue, at Ninetieth street, to retrieve a penny she had dropped.

The child was Bernette Gernsback, daughter of Hugo Gernsback, publisher of radio and scientific magazines and owner of Radio Station WRNY.

Invalids Cheered By Mrs. Walker

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Here for a month's rest, Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the mayor of New York City, visited the Army-Navy General Hospital and distributed cigarets and candy to the invalid World War veterans. She was accompanied by Mrs. S. Rogers, of New York, and Mrs. Floyd Clarady, local American Legion auxiliary leader.

3 SEIZED FOR COMMUNIST AGITATION BEFORE HOOVER

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Two middle-aged men and a University of California student were in jail here today charged with disturbing the peace "by displaying Communistic banners" at the railroad station while President-elect Herbert Hoover was waiting to board a train for San Pedro last night on the first leg of his South American good will tour.

Hoover saw either the men or their banners because at the moment of the arrest, he faced a battery of cameramen for flashlight pictures. They said he looked around over the cheering crowd after the flashlights were exploded, but whether attracted by the small flurry caused by the arrests or whether he was absorbed in taking a farewell look at his fellow townsmen, they were unable to say.

The prisoners were hustled away to jail and held without bail.

Police exhibited two captured banners, one reading "Down With Imperialism," and the other marked "Communism."

The prisoners were V. V. Dart, of Oakland; James Arneth, of Redwood City, and James Jones, who, police said, claimed to be a university student registered from Pasadena. Two Palo Alto women accompanied the trio, but were released by the police. Their names were not divulged. Secret service agents questioned the prisoners, but left the case to local courts.

Wrong Fellow Mobbed as Bomber

LAHORE, India, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—A supposed bomber who was mobbed by the crowd during the funeral of Lala Lajpat Rai was disclosed by the police today to have been a simple unarmed Moslem who complained bitterly of the loss of many rupees shaken from his pockets by the rough handling.

While the funeral of the Nationalist party leader was proceeding to the crematory word got about that a European disguised as a native and heavily armed was following the procession. The excited crowd attacked the Moslem until the police came to his protection.

Chain Publishers Get 5 New Papers

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—National Trade Journals, Inc., announced it had acquired five additional publications, bringing the number of trade papers it controls to 17. The additions are Architectural Forum, Heating and Ventilating Magazine, Good Furniture Magazine, Specialties Salesmen, and Salesology.

'SAILOR' JAILED FOR BEGGING

Roland Nelson, alias Harry Carl Lynch, arrested for panhandling while wearing the uniform of an enlisted man in the United States Navy, on Saturday in Federal Court was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail. After being taken into custody by railroad officers he was turned over to Navy recruiting officers in Pittsburgh.

Nelson told them he was trying to obtain sufficient money to get him back to duty on the Cruiser Nakomis at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. He was taken back by a detail from the recruiting station, and when they arrived at the Navy Yard they learned that Nelson had been discharged from the Navy two years ago. He was brought back to Pittsburgh for prosecution for unlawfully wearing the uniform.

Five Killed in Kansas Grade Crossing Crash

COLBY, Kan., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Don Ayres and four other persons were killed in a grade crossing accident at Gem, Kan., today.

Tribute Paid to Ousted Chief by Police Mates

John F. Brennan, ex-police chief of McKeesport, last night was presented with a lounging chair by members of the city police department. Brennan was demoted to a patrolman two weeks ago by Mayor George H. Lysle but has refused to accept the new position. John J. Whalen, the new chief, was present when the presentation was made. Patrolman James O'Laughlin was spokesman for the force and in a brief address, lauded the record of the former chief.

SNOW INCREASES TERROR OF FLOOD; TOLL GROWS

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Snow fell generally over the flooded areas of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma today, intensifying the suffering and hardship of thousands of persons driven from their homes by overflows which followed an unprecedented November downpour.

Two more drownings recorded today brought the known dead from floods in this section to 14.

At Augusta, Kan., the body of Charles Waterman, a Sante Fe Railway employe, was recovered.

The death in Winfield, Kan., of A. C. Smith, Missouri Pacific section foreman, was verified by railroad officials. Smith was swept from a levee and drowned.

National and local relief agencies throughout the flooded section have joined to combat the new menace and to aid in rehabilitation.

DAMAGE IS MILLIONS

Property damage runs into the millions, the principal loss being to crops, livestock and flooded homes and business buildings in widely scattered sections. Railroad companies suffered heavily through damaged roadbeds and bridges which caused a two-day annulment of trains on many roads.

With the crest of the flood passing from Central and Northeastern Kansas uplands, the danger was increased in Southeastern Kansas, where much of the turbulent overflow will leave the state in a few large streams.

The biggest toll of life at a single point came at Ottawa, Kan. Saturday night when swirling waters capsized a motorboat in which Dr. Ralph Shiras and Dr. J. Ward Smith had heroically carried on rescue operations. The other victims were Mrs. C. C. Jones and her two small daughters, whom the physicians had removed from their flooded home in the Marais des Cygne lowlands.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Payne, and their 3-year-old child were drowned near Hartshorne, Okla., last night, while fording Bushy Creek in a wagon. The family was returning to its home in Arkansas after close of the Oklahoma cotton-picking season. Mrs. Payne's body was the only one recovered.

Mrs. Grace Tucker stepped from the porch of her inundated home at Wellington, Mo., Saturday and drowned. Three other persons, one here and two in Southeastern Kansas, had previously lost their lives.

Relief operations here were well organized yesterday as the swollen Blue River, which drove 200 families from their homes and caused big industrial property damage, returned to its banks.

A slimy coat of mud which lay along the seven mile route of the river within the city limits was caking under wintry winds today.

HEROIC RESCUES

Tales of heroic rescues from rooftops came from Clinton, Mo., caught in its worst flood in recent history. Paved arterial highways were under 12 to 14 feet of water along the Grand River there.

Northwest Missouri was mud-bound with 24 hours of intermittent wet snow following 36 hours of rainfall that began Thursday night.

Snow fell at Arkansas City, where upwards of 100 homes are inundated and the homeless were being cared for in higher parts of the city. One hundred and fifty families are homeless at Augusta, Kan., where $500,000 damage was caused within the city alone, most of which was flooded. The Walnut and White Water Rivers there were receding. One man was missing.

Unverified reports of two deaths came from Winfield, Kan., where flood dikes failed and the worst flood in history swept into the city.

OTTAWA WITHOUT WATER

Ottawa, Kan., one of the hardest-hit towns, remains without water or electric light service or fire protection today. Water shipped in tank cars has partially relieved the suffering.

Paved highways between Kansas City and St. Louis have been reopened, and rail service to Sedalia, stopped Friday night, has been restored.

The flood follows 36 hours of nearly continuous rainfall, which ranged in places up to 10 inches. The Texas Panhandle has felt the climatic disturbance with 6 inches of snow having fallen there since Friday.

Mines Standards Board Meets Here

The National Mines Standards Committee of the American Standards Association will hold its annual meeting at the University Club today at 6 p. m., according to Dr. E. A. Holbrook, dean of the schools of engineering and mines of the University of Pittsburgh, who is chairman of the committee. Representatives of the leading mining organizations in the country compose the membership of the committee. Representatives will be present from the United States Bureau of Mines, United States Department of Labor, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the American Mining Congress, the National Coal Association, Coal Mining Institute of America, Mine Inspectors' Institute of America, American Association of Labor Legislation, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Zinc Institute and the National Safety Council.

Reading Man Falls Into Creek, Drowned

READING, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Benjamin Fry, 70, of Spring Valley, fell down an embankment into a creek and was drowned near his home, his body being found Sunday, after a search. The embankment was near a trolley stop, and it is believed he had just alighted from a car and strayed from the road.

Firemen Break in Door, Check Blaze

Firemen were called out early this morning to extinguish a small fire in the Smithfield restaurant, 405 Strawberry way. The doors of the establishment were locked and it was necessary for firemen to force their way in. Damage was estimated at $15. The cause is unknown.

G. T. HARDING, PRESIDENT'S FATHER, DIES

SANTA ANA, Cal., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Dr. George Harding, father of the late President Warren G. Harding, died here this morning as the result of a paralytic stroke last Friday. He was 84 years old. Mr. Harding came here two weeks ago from Marion, O., to spend the winter.

Dr. Harding, who had looked forward to a season among some of his old comrades, Civil War veterans whom he sometimes recalled, was unconscious much of the time after the stroke. The paralysis affected his entire right side and his vocal organs. In the few conscious moments he had after the stroke, he was unable to speak.

Mrs. Harding and a daughter, Mrs. Carl Votaw, of Washington, D. C., were at the bedside, as was Mrs. E. E. Remsberg, another daughter, at whose home he was visiting.

It was announced that funeral services would be held here and that the body would be sent to Ohio tomorrow for burial.

HOLDS PENNA. ACT IS NOT LEGAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(INS)—The Supreme Court today held unconstitutional the Pennsylvania law of 1927, designed to halt expansion of chain drug stores.

The act, which was sustained in lower federal courts, made it a crime after May 15, 1927, for any but a licensed pharmacist to own a pharmacy, be a partner in a firm owning one or to own a share of stock in a drug store corporation.

The Louis K. Liggett Company appealed, stating that the act would prohibit it from operating new drug stores in Pittsville and Philadelphia. The constitutionality of the law was attacked on the ground that it invaded private property rights. The high court sustained this view.

OWNER HERE TALKS

G. B. Ryland, president of the May Drug Corporation, after learning of his decision said: "The action of the court merely means that our business will go on as it has been without any interference. Up to the present there had been no interference. Those acquainted with the actual conditions never thought that the law would stand when brought before the corts."

Charles C. Campbell, chairman of the State Pharmacy Board, who took part in securing the legislation and in the attempts to uphold it in the courts, states that he believes that there is nothing which can be done further. He said that his interest was from a professional standpoint. The long period of training necessary to become a pharmacist entitled the individual to more than a mere salaried position in a chain store, in his opinion.

Author Would Make Award for Writers

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Arthur Train, new president of the Authors' League of America, proposes in his inaugural address, published today in the Authors' League Bulletin, that the organization establish a Literary Council to make an annual award "for the best work of the year in every branch of literature." He also suggested that the league establish a depository for autographed first editions of American authors as a National Literary Memorial.

American Consulate Offices Ransacked

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Entrance was forced into the United States consulate offices at Zagreb during the night. The rooms were found to be in confusion today with the contents of desks scattered about, but money in the drawer was not touched.

FORMER GOV. ROSS URGES CABINET JOB FOR WOMAN

The women of this country played such a positive part in the recent presidential election that it would not be inappropriate if a representative of their sex were given a post in Mr. Hoover's cabinet, declared former Gov. Nellie T. Ross, of Wyoming, upon her arrival in Pittsburgh today to lecture at the Twentieth Century Club.

"There are many women in this country qualified to fill an important cabinet post," Wyoming's former Democratic woman Governor said. "Of course, being a Democrat, I am not qualified to say just in what manner President-elect Hoover should reward the women of this country for the part they have played in electing him."

Mrs. Ross expressed the opinion that the prohibition issue and to some extent, religion, decided the election. Just how far women were responsible for the defeat of Gov. Smith by their consideration of the dry issue and the Democratic candidate's religion, Mrs. Ross declined to commit herself.

WOMEN VOTE DRY

"The way the women voted leaves no doubt as to their sentiments regarding prohibition," she said. "They considered it the major issue, whereas Democrats generally had not desired it to be such. I personally am dry, but that did not stop me from seconding Gov. Smith's nomination at Houston, since I did not consider prohibition the party's chief issue."

Mrs. Ross believes that, since it has been the will of the people to elect Mr. Hoover, the citizenry as a whole, irrespective of party alignments, should support the new administration.

"We are a democracy and in a democracy citizens should back its government to the fullest extent regardless of their party affiliations," she added.

She let it be known that she is through with politics.

"I have had a very pleasant time running the affairs of my state and I have had excellent co-operation from all sides while in office, but I do not intend ever to run for office again."

Mrs. Ross relinquished office in January, 1927.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

SOUND-LIGHTING TESTED FROM PLANE TO GROUND

Experiments are being held this week at Bettis Field by engineers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company for the lighting of the aviation field at night from an airplane in flight over the field.

Tests already made show that a pilot in the air can light the field by simply turning on a siren attached to his plane.

A large plane with the siren attached created considerable interest throughout the district Saturday as it flew over the Pittsburgh district, the loud noise being noted as unusual. At the field, when the plane is within hearing distance, the noise of the siren is picked up by a receiver on the ground, which transmits the sound waves to an apparatus which switches on the lights.

The tests were made Saturday, with only one light on the hangar roof being used. H. H. Thompson, general engineer, and W. E. Heberlein, switchboard engineer, with Pilot David C. Ruse, were in charge of the experiments, which were started a year ago by Thomas Spooner, a Westinghouse research engineer.

What Doctors Say
About the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARA, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

But if you don't KNOW the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:

The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner mankind has ever found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara, you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy Cascaret. Delightful to the taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purges that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from Cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor can tell you about cascara; and any druggist has the candy Cascarets.

COAL MEET OPENS

glum, Old World savants came to discuss with scientists of the United States the newest keys to unlock the treasures that time and heat and pressure have been sealing in the black beds beneath the earth since the youth of the world.

They came to discuss coal; but they were not going to talk about it as something to be dug and burned for its heat alone. Science has gone far beyond that concept. To the men who gathered here today that conception of coal is as primitive as the savage camp fire seems to a public enjoying the advantages of steam heat.

COAL AS CARBON

They are talking of coal as carbon which modern knowledge looks upon as one of the four essentials of life, along with earth, air, water. From a thousand aspects they came to exchange new knowledge upon coal as a necessity whose importance runs like a broad, black band through the intricate pattern of this modern mechanized age.

Dr. Krauch explained to inquisitive newspapermen that catalysis is a process which makes use of a chemical "go-between," much after the manner, say, of police and racketeers.

ABOUT CATALYSIS

Bring two gases together. Nothing happens, because, you see, the molecules are not friendly. But introduce a catalyzing agent! Under its benign influence the molecules accept each other's embraces, and you may get an entirely new product, or an old one very cheaply.

Some of the newest uses for catalysts and the best methods of using them were explained to the conference by Dr. Krauch, but the news he had for the man in the street was this:

Last year Germany produced some 12,000,000 gallons of gasoline from coal in the Bergin process plant at Leuna. Next year, Dr. Krauch predicted, she will produce five times that much.

Thus, synthetic chemistry — which is credited with having kept Germany in the war two years after she would have been, without its aid, exhausted—is now enabling her to escape paying tribute to the British and American oil monopolies.

PLAYING BIG PART

Catalysis is not employed in the Bergin process, but it is, as Dr. Krauch explained, playing an important part in the stimulation of German agriculture. It is the basic process for producing ammonia for use in fertilizers, or, in other words, getting cheap nitrogen from the air. This same process, originated by the chemist Haber, was used to supply nitrates for explosives during the war.

The originator of the Bergin process, Dr. Friedrich Bergius, will address the conference tomorrow morning. He described his method for making gasoline, before the first coal conference, here in 1926.

STANDARD OIL ACTIVE

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whose president, Walter C. Teagle, introduced Dr. Krauch, has acquired American rights to the Bergin process and is equipping a laboratory to develop it further.

In the Bergin process coal is liquefied at great heat under high pressure. Liquid and gaseous hydrocarbons that result are brought into contact with hydrogen in an active state. The final result is petroleum, which can be split by an ordinary cracking process into gasoline and other petroleum derivatives. Methane, which catalysis will convert into wood alcohol, and coke are by-products.

The only raw material required is coal. The necessary hydrogen is obtained from coal, and heat for the stills is provided by the by-product coke. The value of the process to Germany lies in the fact that it provides a domestic petroleum source—which she did not have before—and opens a new field of utility for the low-grade coal which she has in abundance.

The conference will be in session each morning and afternoon until Saturday, with "popular" sessions Tuesday and Friday evenings.

FLIER LEAPS 4,000 FEET TO CHEAT DEATH

WING TORN OFF AS SHIP HITS STORM

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Paul F. Collins, premier "bad weather" pilot of the air mail service, leaped 4,000 feet from his disabled plane over the village of Millstone about 1 a. m. yesterday and landed safely by means of his parachute in a snowy clearing in the midst of this dense, wooded country.

Collins ran into a fine squall that tossed his ship around like a cork in stormy water. A cross-cross wind ripped a lower wing from the plane and sent it into a tailspin.

By cool thinking Collins managed to save the cargo of mail which he was carrying from Cleveland to New York. Before he jumped from the plane he shut off the motor to avoid an explosion when it landed.

The nose of the ship, which fell a short distance from where the pilot dropped to earth burrowed its way into the ground, but the aluminum mail bag remained intact. Collins retrieved it from the wreckage and walked to Millstone, about 30 miles from here.

A garage man there supplied him with a truck and he brought the mail to the flying field, two miles outside this city.

Collins, the survivor of many a storm and gale over that section of the Allegheny Mountains which the air mail pilots call "Hell Stretch," started out from Cleveland at 4 a. m. The mail from Chicago was four hours late, due to the rough head winds that were blowing there.

Collins said nothing unusual happened until he reached Clarion, Pa., the gateway to the mountainous stretch. There he flew head-on into the line squall. As he saw the crumpled wing flutter away from his plane he leaped from the cockpit. The wind favored him in picking out a landing place. He dropped in a small tract that had only recently been cleared of trees.

The experience entitles Collins to membership in the noted "Caterpillar Club," composed of airmen who have cheated with their parachutes. It was the first time Collins had been forced to make an emergency use of his "chute."

RESUME PHILA. GRAFT PROBE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The special grand jury investigating organized lawlessness, bootlegging and police corruption enters upon its fourteenth week today. Another presentment against police officials for "unexplained wealth" was expected.

Renewed activity was intimated in the search of District Attorney Monaghan to learn the identity of 15 persons whose deposits in the Union Bank and Trust Company amounted to nearly $1,000,000. The prosecutor believes the money was deposited by bootleggers.

Eight members of the disbanded raiding squad, known as Unit No. 1, were under subpena to appear before the grand jury today to conclude the examination into the wealth and activities of all its former members.

GROCERY STORE ROBBED

Soap, cigarets, 500 pounds of sugar and $25 in cash was stolen from the Eagle grocery, at 2246 Center avenue, by thieves who "jimmied" the front door. The robbery was discovered by Center avenue police yesterday.

Two are Arrested in Wash. Dry Raid

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 19.—Frank Lycek, restaurant proprietor, and Andignac Yosensky were arrested here yesterday in police dry raids. No liquor was found at either place, but they are being held on evidence that they had been engaged in bootlegging.

KY. MURDERESS CONFESSES AX SLAYING

WICKLIFFE, Ky., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lizzie Boudreaux, 40, in jail here today on a charge of murder, has admitted to authorities that she was responsible for the death yesterday of Mrs. Annie Thornton, 65, whose body was found severely mutilated with an ax, and says she would do it again, but refuses to assign a motive for the crime.

The body of the aged woman was found about 3 o'clock in the afternoon by Henry Leach, her son, and less than half an hour later Mrs. Boudreaux was arrested while attempting to board a boat for Cairo, Ill.

Mrs. Boudreaux lived in Paducah until about two months ago, where she operated a lodging house. Leach boarded at her place while engaged in construction work near Paducah, and shortly after his departure for Ohio, Mrs. Boudreaux is said to have followed.

Mrs. Boudreaux had been residing at the home of Mrs. Thornton for the last two weeks. A divorce bill alleging misconduct on his wife's part was filed by Boudreaux about two weeks ago.

GIRL MOTORIST ARRESTED

Accused of violating the automobile laws by driving without a license, Virginia Murray, 19, of 830 Western avenue, North Side, was arrested last night by Wilkinsburg police. The girl, driving the machine of W. R. McGowan, of Woods Run, attempted to avoid a collision in Penn avenue and drove her automobile upon the sidewalk, striking Elmer Jones, 18, of 1022 Penn avenue. Jones was only slightly hurt.

A YEAR OF PROGRESS

IT HAS been just a year since the new Ford was introduced. At this first anniversary, it is interesting to review the record of the months just passed and see what has been accomplished.

Since December 2, 1927, nearly 750,000 new Ford cars have been built. Production has been gradually increased from a few hundred a day to 6000 a day. We expect to make 2,000,000 automobiles in 1929.

These are impressive figures. But they are only that. Figures of themselves are unimportant.

The big thing is that the new Ford has delivered a service beyond all expectations. The promise of a year ago is now an accomplished fact.

New Ford is the expression of an ideal

Our policy has always been to regard ourselves as charged with making the best automobile it is possible to make at a low price. That is our mission. We have done it for more than twenty years. The public expects us to keep on doing it.

That obligation includes good design as well as good materials. We hold it our duty to permit nothing to stand in the way of progress, yet we do not make changes simply for the sake of making them. First, it must be demonstrated that what seems like an improvement in theory is an improvement in practice.

THE new Ford has made a high place for itself because it is built on sound principles. There is nothing of an experiment about it.

The whole effort has been toward simplicity—to give you outstanding service with as little machinery as possible. That is where experience counts. Built into the new Ford is everything we have learned in the making of fifteen million automobiles.

The motor has made a remarkable record

Take the motor. It has made a remarkable record because it combines every essential feature of good performance—power, acceleration, smoothness, speed, reliability, economy and long life.

Not just acceleration. Not just smoothness. Not just speed. But the most of all of these features that can be built into a low-priced car without cutting corners or sacrificing quality anywhere along the line.

We were building more than a motor when we did this. We were fulfilling the public's trust in us to make the best selection for their use. Had any other type been better, we would have chosen that.

Value of simplicity shown in performance

Daily, in the performance of the new Ford, you can see the value of its sound simplicity of design, its balance, the care with which it is made, and the quality that has been put into it.

It will do 55 to 65 miles an hour, which is fast enough for anyone. You know howquickly it accelerates. You have seen how it climbs the hills on high. If you drive a new Ford you know its economy of operation and low cost of up-keep.

From every part of the world come reports of its reliability and endurance. Many of the new Fords have been driven 50,000 miles in the past year. Some more than 100,000 miles. There is no telling how far they will go. The average life of the Model T was seven years. We believe this new car will do even better.

THE engine is the heart of the motor car, of course. Yet there are other features almost as important. We refer particularly to the safety of the fully enclosed six-brake system of the new Ford. To its really remarkable smoothness and stability at all speeds and its easy-riding comfort. To the beauty of its lines and colors. To the ease of control. To the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield. To the electric welding that makes it such a strong and sturdy car.

"The new Ford car embodies the best results of our experience in making 15,000,000 automobiles. We consider it our most important contribution to the progress and prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

Henry Ford

In a word, the quality of the new Ford goes clear through. Nothing has been done for show. No one part has been given undue prominence at the expense of another.

Constantly making a better automobile

The new Ford was a good car when it was first introduced. We made sure of that before we asked you to buy it. It is a better car today.

Constantly we are finding new and better ways of doing things. As soon as we are sure of them we put them into the car. There is no such thing as a yearly model. Why should there be? As we make improvements, they are so planned that owners of previously built cars may take immediate advantage of them.

EVERYTHING that has been done has been done with one purpose—to bring the benefits of modern, economical transportation to all the people.

Our mission is to make the best automobile that can be made to sell at a low price. In ever-increasing measure, the new Ford is the expression of that ideal.

17-YEAR TREATMENT CURES "ESCAPE LEPER"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—John Early, the leper, whose love for his native mountains of North Carolina gave health authorities much trouble and newspapers much copy, is going home again.

But this time he goes, not as a fugitive from a leper's asylum, but with the benediction of the authorities. The United States Public Health Service has announced that Early has "recovered" and will be released some time in November from the National Leper Home in Carville, La. He is 54 years of age and has been under treatment for leprosy since he was 37.

SUFFERERS OVERJOYED

Remembering the time when the burial service was read in English churches over leper after the dread malady was discovered, those at the leper home still suffering from the disease, will send Early out with ceremonies symbolic of the joy of men once doomed who have in prospect a reprieve that seems lasting.

The Public Health Service terms Early's case "another triumph in modern medicine." Although he bears on his face and body scars of the disease, he is believed to be well. Periodic tests will be made, but there seems scant danger of a relapse. The health service reports that since 1921 only one leper discharged from the Carville institution as cured has suffered a recurrence of the disease. During the last 16 months 24 patients have been discharged from the leper home as men sound and whole.

FLED TO NATIVE HILLS

Early caused his greatest stir in 1927 when he fled back to his old home near Tyron, N. C., and procured a rifle as insurance against further confinement. Residents of the section petitioned the surgeon general to suspend the Federal law governing the segregation of lepers and to let the man spend his days in self-imposed isolation in a section of the North Carolina hills. The petition, habeas corpus proceedings and Early's rifle did not keep him from going back to Carville.

APPREHENDED AT TACOMA

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—John Early's successful fight against leprosy began here 17 years ago. The announcement from Washington of his "recovery" recalled to Tacomans the spectacular features of his removal from Tacoma to isolation at the Marine Detention Hospital at Port Townsend, Wash., and subsequently his travels across the nation in a box car, from which he escaped in Kansas.

Early was a Spanish-American War veteran and contracted leprosy while in Philippine service.

He was living here with his wife and one or two small children, when revelation of his disease and condition caused a mass meeting here at which was discussed measures for his early removal to government care.

Spanish-American War veteran organizations became active and succeeded in isolating the case when the government took charge. George H. Tausan, a deputy in the county treasurer's office, active on a veteran's committee which investigated, married Mrs. Early after the government had separated the man from his family.

EVANGELIST IS SUED

Evangelist John W. Sproul, who preaches daily at Glory Barn, Carson street, is the defendant in four suits to be argued this week in County Court. The suits, filed by three Wheeling residents, will determine whether a total of $2,711 was loaned to the evangelist during a revival in that city, or whether it was the amount of donations received by him.

Morris Barlow, Grace Dailey and Louisa A. Eriewine are the Wheeling residents bringing the suit. They charge they loaned the money to the evangelist last December and were to be repaid upon request. Sproul, however, maintains that the amounts were received as voluntary donations in the interest of his religious campaign.

Scrapper Bites Policeman; Fined $25

The biting of Policeman John J. Lyons cost Thomas Hailey, 25, of 2323 Venture street, $25. Yesterday Hailey and Nelson Coon, 21, of 302 Sandusky street, battled at Anderson street and River avenue. When the patrolman arrived Hailey forgot about Coon and attacked the officer and, it is alleged, bit Lyons on the left wrist. After sending his prisoners to the North Side Police Station, Lyons had his wound treated at Allegheny General Hospital. Today Hailey was fined and Coon was discharged.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mollie Cullum Makes Her Bow to Society In New York

JUST as once upon a time it was quite enough to be concerned with the politics of one's own community or country, it was thought quite sufficient to have concern only for social life within one's own city. Nowadays a person who refuses to be internationally minded is scorned by modern thinkers. And today one can't watch just the social events in one's home town; for no matter how big a city is, its social set finds its interests embrace not only the north, the south, the east, the west, but also other countries.

Really it is very exciting to be interested in the social life of so many cities, but it is rather hard for one to decide whether to attend an event "at home in New York, or in the South isn't it." At least our parents and grandparents were saved from debating over a decision.

MANY folks who were not able to attend the debut of attractive Mollie Cullum, daughter of James Barlow Cullum, of Sewickley, are interested in it, anyway. You recall, I'm sure, that I mentioned several days ago that Mollie was to be presented at a supper dance, on the Saturday night just passed, in New York. Her parents and the William A. Primes, of New York, presented her and the Primes' daughter, Carnelo Prime, in the Prime home.

Mrs. Prime, Mrs. Cullum and their daughters assisted by Cornelia Brady Kip, received the guests in the drawing room of the second floor of the home. Vases of calla lilies were arranged about the room. The debutantes were dressed alike in robes de style, fashioned of cloth of silver, veiled with white chiffon.

Dancing was in the Gothic ballroom, paneled in oak, which was decorated with a profusion of American Beauty Roses. Supper was served in the dining room.

Most of the guests were New York debutantes and men of the younger set. Some folks from Pittsburgh were there, too, as you might expect. A number of them came from the Princeton-Yale game.

THIS winter there'll be at least one series of events that is not planned primarily for the buds of the season. I'm referring to the morning musicales, which were so popular last year, don't you remember?

The first musicale will be held Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, in Wilkins avenue. And Sarah Horner, contralto, of Mt. Pleasant, will sing, accompanied by Violet McCloy. Mrs. Archer E. Young, pianist, will present several groups, I understand, and Eleanor Herring, violinist, will play, accompanied by Kathryn Rose.

These musicales will be given every month throughout the season, with the exception of December.

FROM now on there'll be hectic preparations for the holiday season just a little more than a month off. There are always innumerable social events planned for the Yuletide when the debutante has to admit the school set into a part of society's attention.

OF course there'll be many a Christmas entertainment given for a bud, but the school set will be in attendance. One affair of great importance will be the reception the William Christopher Robisons will give in their home in Sewickley New Year's Day in honor of Virginia Willock, debutante daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks, of Sewickley. A supper will follow the reception, I believe.

* * *

AND the dances the Pittsburgh Club gives are always regarded with interest. The first dinner dance of the season will be on December 14, according to McCleane Brown, the chairman.

I ALMOST forgot to tell you about another bit of news from out of town. It concerns Dr. and Mrs. George Fowler Wheeling, who are spending their honeymoon in Mexico and Cuba, and I understand that they will be the guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight Morrow at Mexico City some time during their trip. They expect to make their home in Philadelphia when they get back to the States. You remember, of course, that Mrs. Wheeling was Sarah Gillespie Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Reed Hamilton, of Woodland road, before she was married a few weeks ago.

AMONG the visitors to Pittsburgh over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Chandler, of New York, who were guests of Mrs. Chandler's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Childs Wurts, of Northumberland street. Mrs. Chandler was Laura Wurts before her marriage, you know.

MISS BERNADINE McNANAMY, of North Dallas avenue, entertained with a surprise birthday party Friday night in her home in honor of Miss Gene O'Hagan, of Crafton.

THE annual Trinity Ball will be held December 26 in the Hotel Schenley, the proceeds going, as usual, to the building and endowment fund. Miss Rosemary Hamilton is president of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Trinity College Alumnae Association.

MR. AND MRS. CONRAD KALTENHAUSER, of Elmore street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Ruth Kaltenhauser, to Robert Clarke Stewart, son of Dr. William S. Stewart, of Finleyville.

MISS ABIGAIL ALDEN GUTHRIE, daughter of Speer Wallace Guthrie, of Indiana, Pa., has chosen December 1 as the date for her marriage to Robert W. Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Smith, of Greensburg. The ceremony will be a very small one in the Guthrie home and will be followed by a reception in the Indiana Country Club. Mrs. Edwin F. Roberts, of Wilkins avenue, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Joseph Suydam Bair, of Greensburg, sister of Mr. Smith, will be matrons of honor. George R. Potts is to be best man and the ushers will be Wallace D. Guthrie, brother of the bride, and Joseph Suydam Bair.

A CARD party will be held Tuesday night in the Odd Fellows' Temple, Fourth avenue, under the auspices of Alice Carey Rebekah Lodge No. 120. Mrs. Elizabeth Sparn is chairman.

COURT Allegheny, No. 664, C. D. A., will hold a Thanksgiving social tomorrow night in the Knights of Columbus Hall. Mrs. Marie Huber Legler is chairman. The initiation will be held December 3 in the William Penn Hotel.

OUR LADY OF MERCY SODALITY of St. Peter's Church, North Side, will hold a card party Tuesday night, November 27, in the school hall. The president, Miss Elizabeth Grady, is in charge.

* * *

THE Norpa Club will hold its annual Thanksgiving hop and card party November 27 in the club rooms in Collins avenue. Bridge and "500" will be played.

BRANCH No. 267, Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association of St. Peter's Catholic Church, North Side, will hold a card party Thursday night in the school building. Mrs. Margaret Byrnes, the president, is chairman.

* * *

A CARD party and dance will be held Saturday night in the Corpus Christi Lyceum, Lincoln and Agnew streets, by the Young Ladies' Sodality.

U. S. Mines 6 Billion Minerals Annually

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The United States is producing minerals with a value of $6,000,000,000 annually and is finding employment for a million workers in mines, quarries, coke ovens and metal plants. The figures were made public today by Scott Turner, director of the Bureau of Mines, in connection with his annual report of the year's activities. About 2,800 men are killed and 200,000 per year injured in maintaining the output.

THE WAY OF A HEALTHFUL DAY

A morning dish of ALL-BRAN prevents constipation

Clear eyes. Fresh complexions. Buoyant spirits. They all come when the right kind of food is eaten. One of the main things that our modern diet lacks is the roughage necessary to prevent constipation, which is the cause of so much ill health.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will furnish the bulk you need to keep well and fit.

ALL-BRAN is 100 per cent bran. It supplies roughage in effective quantities. Far better than part-bran products. At best, they can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily — chronic cases, with every meal.

An appetizing, healthful cereal of unusually nutritious qualities. Serve it with milk or cream and add fruits or honey. Use it in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

A PICTURE YOU'LL CHEER!
The word has spread from Coast to Coast that here truly is the Epic of Hollywood. No wonder. All of Hollywood took part. The greatest stars of shadowland all appear in this picture. And it was directed by King Vidor, the man who made "The Big Parade." He has bared the heart of cameraland. He has told in throbbing, dramatic sequences the story of one girl among the thousands who daily roam to the City of Dreams. It's laugh-packed, but there are tears, too. It's spectacular in its splendors. And you HEAR as well as SEE each exciting episode of it.

WILL GLADLY ANSWER LETTERS FROM WOMEN

Asking for Information About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. GLADYS ROGERS
Route 5, Grand Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl about 14 years old, when I was just entering womanhood. Then after I married, I took more of it. During the time before my baby was born this medicine gave me splendid results. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation also and recommend these medicines to my friends and will answer letters asking about them."—Mrs. Gladys Rogers, Route 5, Grand Avenue Atlanta, Georgia.

A Lot Better By Taking It

Trafford, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I could not eat a thing. I had no appetite whatever and never felt good. I was talking to my friend one day and she passed the remark of how thin I was getting since I got married and I told her my trouble and she advised me to take the Vegetable Compound. I feel a lot better now since I have been taking it regularly and I can eat most anything. I recommend your medicine to anyone who tells me of troubles like my own, for I know what it has done for me. I have also used your Sanative Wash. I am willing to answer women if they ask about the medicine."—Mrs. E. Gelatic, Box 502, Trafford, Pa.

Weather Conditions.

A low pressure area of wide extent and marked intensity developed over the East. The center of the disturbance is over Eastern Tennessee and Kentucky this morning, lowest barometer, 29.64 inches, at Knoxville. It is producing heavy rain in Eastern Tennessee and light rains everywhere from the plains eastward. It is raining this morning in all the Ohio Valley states and the Lake region and snowing on the western edge of the low in Missouri and Eastern Iowa.

Following the rainstorm is a high pressure area, which covers the entire West. It is attended by clear skies, generally, and it is producing a marked change to colder weather. Below freezing temperatures occurred over all the Rocky Mountain states to the Mexican border, and in Northern Montana 6 degrees above zero.

River Conditions.

Slight rises have set in at the headwaters due to light rain. Rain will continue today and tonight, and will likely produce rising rivers throughout the district. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.9 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.6, and Dam No. 6, 8.1. The dams are up.

DUQUESNE MAN SHOT IN FIGHT

John Bekvich, 35, of 103 Mill street, Duquesne, is in Homestead Hospital suffering a bullet wound in the right side, received yesterday during a fight in River avenue, Duquesne. Police say that Beckvich, whose condition is regarded as serious, was shot by Mike Korich, 38, 113 Linden avenue, Duquesne. Korich is under arrest. Police say Beckvich had a revolver but was shot before he had a chance to use it.

Sure Way to Stop Coughing

This Prescription Relieves Almost Instantly.

Coughing is usually due to causes which patent medicines and cough syrups do not reach. However, Thoxine, a famous doctor's prescription, relieves coughing with the very first swallow. It works on an entirely different theory, has a double action, relieves the irritation and goes direct to the internal cause.

Unlike most cough medicines, Thoxine contains no chloroform, dope, or other harmful drugs. Safe for the whole family. Also excellent for sore throat. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back. 35c, 60c and $1.00. All druggists.

DON'T WAIT—TAKE THEM IN TIME

When Chas. McAllister, Kearny, N. J., reached the point where he had to drag his tired, aching, weary body from a well-nigh sleepless bed, he did a wise thing—bought a bottle of Foley Pills diuretic, and then: "After taking Foley Pills diuretic for a time I became all right, and my kidney distress, pain and weakness are all gone." Cost little. Satisfaction guaranteed. Try them. Sold everywhere.

WHERE MINE BURNS

County Ready to Award Contract to Quell Flames at Cost of $50,000

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

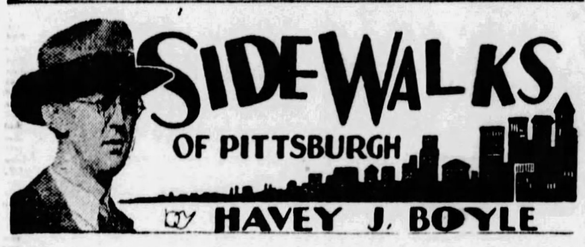
DITCH TO BE CUT THROUGH HILL TO STOP FIRE, COUNTY PLAN

A fleet of steam shovels will soon be cutting through the smoldering abandoned mine on the McElhaney plan, Mifflin Township, on contract to be awarded by County Commissioners next week. The mine has been burning for a year and two lives have been lost when earth near an entrance caved in. Above, artist and photographer show the seared surface of the workings and structures threatened should the flames continue. The burning section of the mine will be isolated from the rest of the workings by cutting a ditch through the hill. It will cost the county $50,000.



"DID you know," writes M. M. Scott, of the Boys' Club, "that in Atlanta, Ga., the big football games are played on Spiller field? Or that Jack Dyer, a former Pittsburgher now in Jacksonville, Fla., has Carrick for his middle name."

No, that all escaped the column, but Mr. Scott in turn may be interested to know that the telephone book lists E. Manytailfeathers as operating a local beauty shop.

A Pittsburgh father was asked by his boy in what line men made the most money. Little Jim is quite young, and he wants to make a lot of money preliminary to turning gentleman farmer. "Banking, I should say," said the father. "Well," said Jim, "how do you get started in that. Do they put you behind the bars right away?" "No," said the father, "that usually comes later in the life of a banker."

MR. STERRETT, who serves the A's and B's in Mellon's (the one with the imminent mustachio), has two hobbies. One is riding from here to Cincinnati on a boat, the other is collecting strange coins, and unique greenbacks. Mr. Sterrett, for instance, has what numismatists call a Columbia half-dollar which is now worth almost 54 cents.

Note: The word numismatists is by courtesy of Mr. Max Henrici, a desk neighbor, who is just loaded up with such things.

IT'S hard to beat the artists who have a disdain for the laymen's ignorance of paintings. When confronted with the recent story in the Sun-Telegraph of the painting that was hung upside down in the local exhibition, our artist friend said that this simply showed it was a fine picture. Well, you could have knocked us over with the well-known feather.

It was in an insignificant Italian restaurant in the Hill district where the spaghetti is fine and where—but no matter. The proprietor is an obliging little fellow whose business is providing fine food. He doesn't know Tom Jones from Bill Brown. In fact, Chaliapin, a very famous singer, on a visit to Pittsburgh, heard about the spaghetti and the—but no matter—and practically camped there all during his stay in Pittsburgh. One night Chaliapin got in a jovial mood in the restaurant and began singing a few favorites. The restaurant proprietor almost begged the great singer to cease. "We can't stand so much noise here. The neighbors will be complaining."

That other globe-trotter, Mr. Cy Hungerford, furnished the words for this one. Strange that those two old collaborators, Mr. Henrici and Mr. Hungerford, should collaborate in a new way to help out a local youth in preparing his column.

DEDICATE NEW CHURCH CHAPEL AT WEST VIEW

The West View United Presbyterian Church, Bellevue and Chalfonte avenues, consisting of chapel and Sunday school rooms, was dedicated yesterday afternoon, as the climax of a week of special services conducted by the Rev. J. M. McQuilken, of Carnegie. As a result of the services the number of members was increased from 80 to approximately 100.

The Rev. H. D. McCalmont, pastor of the newly organized church, presided at the dedication. His father, the Rev. D. T. McCalmont, of Valencia, gave the invocation. The dedicatory prayer was by the Rev. Dr. John McNaugher, president of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and the dedicatory address was by the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, of the First U. P. Church, North Side.

The new church is the only one in the vicinity and a rapid growth is forecast by its pastor and officers. A meeting for organization will be held Wednesday night. A provisional session has been functioning under appointment of the Allegheny presbyterry.

SAYS MAN IS OWN MASTER

That man is master of his fate and can remake the world according to his desire is the message of "the new revelation," which supersedes all former revelations.

This was the contention of the Rev. Horace Westwood, of Boston, last night at the First Unitarian Church, Ellsworth and Morewood avenues, in his address that opened the second week of the mission of liberal religion being held at that church. Dr. Westwood will speak every night this week at 8 o'clock, except Saturday, and will give his final address Sunday, November 25. Tonight his topic will be "Your Dream World and Your Real World."

City Starts Plans For East St. Bridge

Council has authorized advertisements of ordinances necessary for street improvements to provide approaches for the proposed East Street Bridge to be built by Allegheny county. The city law department was requested to attempt to get waivers of damages from property owners abutting the streets.

The thoroughfares affected are Essen street, Quebec street, an unnamed 10-foot way and an unnamed 30-foot street in the Twenty-sixth Ward.

The Belmec Dramatic Club, a department of the Epworth League of the Brookline Methodist Episcopal Church, is rehearsing the playlet, "Mary's Castle in the Air," to be given soon.

25 Seeking Job as Crafton Speed Officer

More than 25 applications have been received for the position of motorcycle patrolman for Crafton Borough, according to J. Otto Schreiber, secretary.

The borough now employs eight policemen, but its many good streets tempt speeders, so the borough officials decided a motorcycle policeman was needed.

The new officer will be chosen at a meeting to be held soon.

WILL AID CHARITY

SANDY ACKLAND

Sandy Ackland, of Teller Sisters and Ackland, appearing at the Harris Theater this week, will contribute his services to the midnight show to be given at the Stanley Theater, Friday night, November 23, for the benefit of the Welfare Fund. The entertainment will be put on by the Variety Club of Pittsburgh, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

AUTO STRIKES TWO ACTORS

Fred Van Etten, 45, and Roy Thompson, 46, members of the Desert Song Company, which played at a local theater last week, were injured when struck by an automobile driven by Francis M. Kelley, 38, of 71 Mainsgate street, Crafton, at West Carson and Smithfield streets, early yesterday morning.

According to the West End Police, Kelley was arrested by Motorcycle Patrolman R. L. Richman in the 1600 block in West Carson street after he struck a pole. Kelley was examined by Dr. E. F. Waller, 55 Wyoming street, city physician, who pronounced him under the influence of liquor, police say.

The injured men were taken to South Side Hospital in the police patrol, and after being treated left the city. Van Etten received a sprained right leg and lacerations and Thompson suffered a lacerated head and bruises.

Offered a Ride, Robbed by Motorist

Offered a ride by a motorist, M. G. Glenn, 333 South Pacific avenue, was robbed by his benefactor of $8. After robbing his fare, the motorist forced him, at the point of a gun, to leave the machine at Center avenue and Bryn Mawr road. Police have been unable to find any clue to the robber.

Runaway Motorcycle Injures Pedestrian

A runaway motorcycle, minus its rider, struck and severely injured John Wunderick, 60, of Robert street, East Liberty, at Beatty and Penn avenue. The motorcycle, according to police, had been in collision with an auto a moment before, and the victim standing nearby, was hit as the machine was hurled to the curb.

CHURCH HOLDS ANNIVERSARY

The forty-fifth anniversary of its founding was celebrated with fitting services yesterday by the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Crafton, special services being held both morning and evening. Special speakers were the Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Henry, who received strong support for the office of bishop of the church, and the Rev. J. S. Payton, district superintendent of the Pittsburgh district. Dr. Henry spoke in the morning and Dr. Payton in the evening.

The church was founded 45 years ago when a group of persons met in the home of Mrs. Harriet Spees. The frame church was dedicated in 1884 with the Rev. Edward Williams as the first pastor. From that beginning the church has grown into one of the strongest organizations in the Chartiers Valley. It now has a membership of 800. The Rev. John S. Allison is in the third year of his pastorate.

Offer Reward for Hit-Run Driver

The Pittsburgh Automobile Club has offered a reward of $100 for information leading to the identity of the hit-run driver who struck and killed Waldemar Dryssen on the Kittanning road, O'Hara Township, last August 4. The information is to be given to Justice of the Peace James A. Hernon, Sharpsburg.

Employe Retired After 36 Years

Mahlon Hancock, 1011 Ross avenue, has been retired on pension after 36 years continuous service for the Union Switch and Signal Company. Prior to going with the Union Switch and Signal Company Mr. Hancock was with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for a number of years. He is still in good health and vigorous.

ASKS $20,000 FOR FALSE ARREST

Ben Burak, Carnegie, has instituted suit against four Carnegie citizens for $20,000 damages for having him arrested on a disorderly conduct charge.

In his bill of particulars filed in Common Pleas Court, Burak claims that he was taken out of bed in his home in Carnegie by Adam Wolrath and Charles Skearpoint without a warrant and locked up, the arrest being made on request of Lieut. of Police Harry Keisling and instigated by Harry Harris, all of whom are made defendants in the suit.

Burak says that he was released on condition that he would appear the next evening, June 29 last for a hearing and reported before Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen, who fined him $10 and the costs $8.90. He claims that the arrest was illegal, that he has been humiliated and his reputation injured. The suit was brought by his counsel, Oliver K. Eaton.

WILL CONSIDER NEW SUPT.

The Bellevue school board is scheduled to meet in special session tonight to give further consideration to candidates for supervising principal of the Bellevue schools from whom a successor will be chosen to Dr. J. Freeman Guy, recently resigned.

The names of half a dozen men, with recommendations of well-known educators, have been suggested. Dr. Guy, it is understood, wishes to take up his new duties as associate principal of Pittsburgh schools, in charge of elementary grades, by January 1, or sooner if his successor can be selected before that time.

Woman Injured As Autos Collide

Mrs. Dora Riehl, 21 Greenbush street, was injured slightly when riding in an automobile driven by Irwin N. Schmidt, 120 Prospect street, Thursday night. Schmidt was pulling out from the curb at Kramer way and Boggs avenue, and was struck by an automobile driven by Peter Nagnoth, 81 Norton street, who was eastbound on Boggs avenue. Both machines were slightly damaged and drivers agreed to settle among themselves. No arrests have been made.

Names Committee For Nominations

E. C. Nied, president of the Business Men's Association of the East North Side has appointed a nominating committee to select candidates for the annual election to be held at the next meeting. The committee includes Peter Straub, L. B. Seefried, Louis Lenz, Julius Schmidt, George Hess, Walter Steurnagle, O. J. Goettman, Frank Ley, L. P. Schaefer, Cornelius Pappert and Messrs. Mock, Shoemaker and Sedler.

Dog Bites Two Boys Same Day

The biting of Sidney Mullen, 10, of 5834 Morrowfield avenue, by a dog led to a second accident of a similar nature. After his wound was dressed, Sidney's mother accompanied by Irvin Deven, 10, of 2798 Beechwood boulevard, went to the home of Mrs. Nellie Jones, 2260 Shady avenue, owner of the dog, to notify her of the attack. The dog attacked the Deven boy. His wound was cauterized. Sidney Mullen had been bitten as he returned from school yesterday afternoon.

COUNCILMEN WASH HANDS OF SPITE FENCE DISPUTE

A spité fence row, occasioned by a structure on the property of John A. Calder, Penn avenue and Midland street, has reached the Wilkinsburg Borough Council, but that august body has washed its hands of the affair and will have nothing to do with it.

The matter was brought before Council in the form of a petition signed by 50 residents of that district asking Council to take measures to have the offending fence removed.

After discussion it was determined that Council had no authority in the matter and the petition was referred to the building and plumbing inspector with instructions to use his best efforts to bring about an amicable adjustment.

ROADWAY BILL HELD UP

Council has withheld approval of a bill for $10,800 presented by Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory for investigating the condition of Mt. Washington roadway bridge.

When the bridge was completed, the city refused to pay the contractor after it was discovered that the concrete work was honey-combed until the defects were corrected. The laboratory was engaged by the city to test the safety and workmanship of the span.

In withholding payment of the laboratory bill, Council asked the city testing bureau to report what it did in the investigation.

Auto Hits Pole, Sues for $30,000

Thomas Carmody, 1276 Benton avenue, who was riding in the automobile of Richard Partridge, Seville avenue, Bellevue, December 6 last, when the car struck a pole on the road near Horne's Camp, Killbuck township, has sued Partridge for $30,000 damages for personal injuries. Attorney H. Fred Mercer who represents the plaintiff sets forth in the bill of particulars that Partridge did not keep his car under proper control with the result that Carmody suffered a fracture of the right ulna.

Cathedral Chapel Plans Card Party

A card party will be held for the benefit of Cathedral Chapel, Thursday, the event to be at the Cathedral auditorium in the high school building, North Craig street. Bridge, "500" and other card games will be played. Mrs. P. E. Dixon is general chairman, assisted by the following aides: Prizes, Mrs. J. Dwyer; cards, Mrs. Hannah Curran; refreshments, Mrs. Edward L. Flaherty; door, Miss Anna McTige, and advertising, Mrs. James P. Kirk.

Detective

HARRY B. COCHRAN

A veteran detective in the Pittsburgh district, Harry B. Cochran has been a member of the county detective force since 1911. Several years ago he was elevated to the office of assistant chief and has held that position since.

Mt. Oliver Junks Old Parking Laws

Changed conditions, occasioned by the rapid use of the automobile, has prompted the borough Council of Mt. Oliver to order a revision of all parking ordinances. The solicitor will draw up a repealing ordinance throwing the old parking orders into the discard after which new ordinances governing the present situation will be introduced in Council.

Card Party Series Planned by D. of A.

A series of card parties are being planned by Victory Council, D. of A., to be held in Odd Fellows' Hall, Tioga street. Mrs. Belle P. Smith is chairman of the general committee. Euchre, "500" and old maid will provide the entertainment.

BITTEN, SHOOTS OWN DOG

After being bitten on the right hand, J. F. Dorn, 901 Gibson street, West End, was forced to shoot his own dog. Yesterday Dr. W. A. Foster, 1018 Chartiers avenue, gave Dorn first aid, and upon advice of Dr. Daniel Sable, chief surgeon of the Department of Public Safety, the animal's head was removed to the West Penn Hospital for examination. Dorn received a Pasteur treatment.

St. Philomena to Open Auditorium

The new St. Philomena's Auditorium, Squirrel Hill, will be opened officially next Monday evening when a card party and entertainment will be held. The program will include cards, dancing and a bazar. An excellent program has been arranged by the committee. The hall is recognized as one of the best places for social gatherings in the district.

Fire Department Gives Crafton Truck

The Crafton Fire Department has placed an order for a new fire truck which will be presented to the borough as an auxiliary to the department's present equipment. The truck is to be delivered within 60 days, and department states the gift to the borough is in recognition of the support the residents of Crafton have given the department.

BUSINESS MEN NAME OFFICERS

The Mt. Oliver-Knoxville Business Men's Association at a meeting held in G. B. U. Hall, Arlington avenue, elected the following officers:

President, Louis R. Schmidt; first vice president, A. W. Weiland; second vice president, J. G. Meyers; third vice president, J. Henry Gensler; fourth vice president, William P. Brennen; treasurer, William Woods, and secretary, Carl S. Habegger.

Shannon Transfers Police Court Cases

Due to friction existing between Castle Shannon policemen and Burgess John Delaney and the borough justices of the peace, Castle Shannon Council has voted to take all future police cases of the borough before Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon. The police department claims they have not had the backing of the burgess or Justice of the Peace George Beltzhoover.

Brentwood Parent-Teachers Meet

A unique program in which the choral union of the Carrick Mothers' Club sang three numbers, was a feature of the regular meeting of the Brentwood Parent-Teachers' Association, held at the Elroy School. Mrs. O. B. Hughes, president of the Allegheny County Parent-Teachers' Association, spoke on "The Origin of the P. T. A."

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 19.

Its been a great fall for the farmer. No matter how much his mortgages were he could always turn on the radio every evening and receive consolation on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Mr. Hoover would care for his every desire.

On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays Mr. Smith would succor him. This was up to November sixth. Then Smith lost interest in him.

Hoover discovered that it was the Argentine planter that needed aid. So it looked like the poor farmer was left with no relief from his radio but a jazz band. Then Mr. Coolidge rushed into the breach and last Saturday night the old tiller of the soil got his usual relief.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

WHOLE FLOCK OF PLAYERS RUMORED ON LIST FOR PARAMOUNT RELEASE

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.

MORE turbulence at Paramount regarding the rumored release of a number of stars, featured players and directors. Among the list of names mentioned are those of Bebe Daniels, Esther Ralston, Florence Vidor, Fred Kohler, Lane Chandler, Jack Luden, John Loder, Frank Strayer, and these are not all. It looks as though those who forecast that the audible pictures would eliminate half the present crop of cinema celebs knew pretty well whereof they spoke.

If the ax ever threatens the shapely neck of Clara Bow—which it won't—there is a job waiting for her in New York. For it is stated on good authority that Mr. Ziegfeld did his best to get Paramount to permit Clara to appear in his new production, "Show Girl." Paramount replied that it might be done providing Clara made any of her pictures in the East. The present plan, however, keeps the red-headed box-office magnet close to Hollywood. Just as soon as "The Saturday Night Kid" is completed, Clara begins work on her next, "Apache Love." It is from a story of Earnest Vadja.

Study for Stars; Home Work, Too

GOOD, smart little stars will stay home nights and attend to their knitting in future. For the producers are complaining that the players are not taking advantage of the opportunities offered them to learn how to talk for the talkies. The producers are willing to spend their money, they say, but they insist that the stars are not conscientious about their home work. So much so, in fact, that the question will be brought up before the next meeting of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Evelyn Brent fooled all her friends by slipping off to Agua Caliente with Harry Edwards, director of comedies and cartoon strips, and promising in both American and Spanish to "love, honor and obey." Evelyn has been observed much in Mr. Edwards' company, but nobody guessed that he was such a fast worker. The one person who appears not to have been left open-mouthed with astonishment is Evelyn's best pal and severest critic, Dorothy Herzog, one of Hollywood's ace film columnists. Dorothy accompanied Evelyn to Mexico and took her share of the responsibility by being bridesmaid. Here's hoping Evelyn and her hubby have a whole lifetime of happiness.

Edmund Goulding, who enlisted under the Pathe banner last week, has had great plans made for him by Joseph P. Kennedy. After sticking around a while writing and directing audible films, it is understood that Goulding will be awarded the big plum of directing Gloria Swanson in her picture, "Clothes," which is to follow "Queen Kelly."

Goulding's contract seems to be more with Kennedy than with Pathe, which explains why he may be assigned to Gloria's picture. Incidentally, this lends further credence to the story that Kennedy is assembling a production organization consisting of Gloria, Menjou, Jack Gilbert and Pola Negri. In Goulding he has a director worthy of any of them.

Snow at Childs' Means $40,000

IF it shows in front of Childs' Fifth avenue restaurant in New York within the next few days, Samuel Goldwyn collects $40,000. The wily producer has insured himself to this extent against loss of time and money in filming Vilma Banky's picture, which is to be taken on that location. For $40,000 Sam should be able to produce a blizzard.

None save Ramon Novarro's very close friends know that he has in his possession a number of phonograph records of his own voice in various operatic selections and Mexican songs. Ramon made them privately some time ago simply for his own amusement and the entertainment of his friends. Ramon has a very fine tenor voice which approaches baritone. He will sing abroad in opera next year.

Speaking of the influx of stage actors into the movies, a movie fan magazine writer remarks sadly, "it does seem too bad that after writing about Norma Talmadge for the past 17 years, that all of a sudden we have to learn about a lot of new people!"

Women Form Breakfast Club

The Breakfast Club, with its ham-and-eggs and the hobby-horse for guests to ride, is one of the unique organizations of the country. Celebrities of all nations have arisen at unholy hours to be "honored" at 8 o'clock in the morning by the elect membership. But the Breakfast Club is a mere man's organization. Now the ladies are to have one of their own. It will be of 50-50 importance with the original. Among the stars already included in the list of charter members are Virginia Valli, Leatrice Joy, Ruth Roland, Lois Wilson and a host of others. Leatrice, by the way, was the very first guest of honor. The members will be hostesses to the athletes of all nations who will compete in the Olympic games to be held here.

A little girl from Brooklyn, June Nash, by name, has only been away from Broadway for six months. But in that time she has been given four big roles in pictures. The fourth has not actually been played as yet, but the contract is signed and June will be seen next in Pathe's "The Missing Man." There are two leading feminine roles in the picture. June has one and Lee Patrick, the other. Both are graduates from the stage to the movies.

SOME SCENES FROM :-: "SHOW PEOPLE" :-: HERE THIS WEEK

Marion Davies tests the durability of Kalla Pasha's head with a bottle. This brings back the old pie-throwing comedy technic as part of "Show People," in which Marion is a girl seeking a movie career. Co-starring Miss Davies and William Haines, it will be in the Penn all this week.

More slapstick stuff in this scene from "Show People," the characters being those played by Kalla Pasha, William Haines and Marion Davies. This comedy, which has sound syncopation, is the work of Laurence Stallings and Agnes Christine Johnston. King Vidor was the director of the film.

GERMAN STAR HERE NEXT MONTH

Morris Gest, in association with Edgar Selwyn, will bring Alexander Moissi, an actor who has dominated the Central European stage for the last two decades, to Pittsburgh in a production of Tolstoy's, "The Living Corpse" ("Redemption"). The engagement here will be in the Pitt for one week, opening Monday evening, December 17.

This project will offer the first occasion for audiences to see a typical Max Reinhardt cast. While in Salzburg, during the festival last summer, Mr. Gest induced Prof. Reinhardt to loan leading players from his theater in Berlin for an American tour. The company has just played a preliminary engagement in the Tolstoy drama in Berlin.

Moissi's New York engagement will begin in the Ambassador Theater tonight, and it will extend for two weeks only. Thereafter, for the remainder of the eight weeks agreed upon in the contract, the noted German actor and his company will visit Pittsburgh and other cities for the first time, concluding his tour late in January to meet contracts to appear with his company in the capitals of South America.

The tour of Moissi and his German company in "The Living Corpse" will be in the nature of a centenary celebration of the birth of Count Lyoff Tolstoy.

A. F. OF L. AIMS TO DOUBLE ROSTER

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Plans for doubling the membership of the American Federation of Labor in 1929 were put in motion here today at the opening session of the forty-eighth annual convention of the organization.

Paid up membership for the year ending August, 1928, was 2,893,913, an increase of 81,387 over the previous year, the executive council report said. This number did not include 500,000 who were on strike or unemployed and for whom no taxes was paid to the federation.

Delegates were urged by the executive council to pay particular attention to bringing into the fold workmen on jobs which required little previous training, since they have not advanced proportionally with unorganized labor. This class includes many women workers.

The report reiterated the federation's support of the five-day week.

The convention will continue 10 days.

2 BANDITS ROB TAXI DRIVER

George Kilgore, of 1702 Fifth avenue, a cab driver, was robbed of $13 by two Negro fares at Aliquippa and Wallace streets, yesterday. The Negroes engaged the cab in the Hill district and ordered the driver to take them to Aliquippa street, where one of the thugs pointed a revolver while the other took the money.

Gas in Stomach Hurts the Heart

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion, Says Medical Writer.

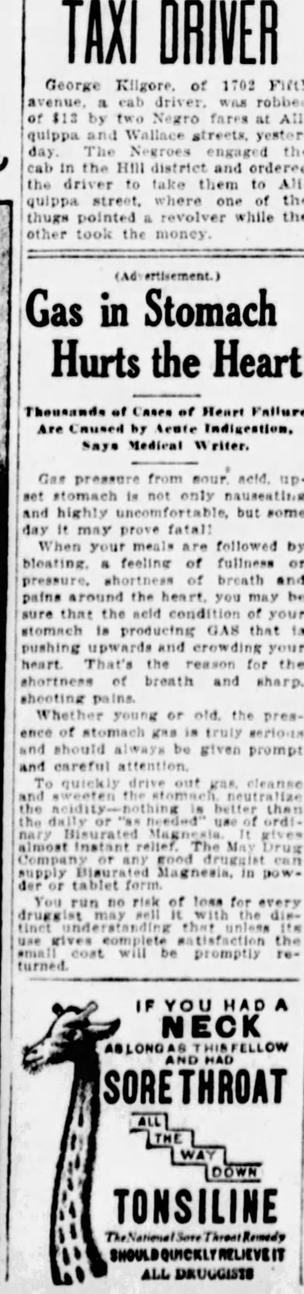
Gas pressure from sour, acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly uncomfortable, but some day it may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fullness or pressure, shortness of breath and pains around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing GAS that is pushing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is truly serious and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

To quickly drive out gas, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity—nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief. The May Drug Company or any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form.

You run no risk of loss for every druggist may sell it with the distinct understanding that unless its use gives complete satisfaction the small cost will be promptly returned.



STAGE BILLS PRESENT VARIETY

Katharine Cornell is the chief figure in the new play, "The Age of Innocence," in which she will be presented this week in the Pitt beginning this evening. Arnold Korff and Rollo Peters are in the cast.

"Golden Dawn," hailed last season as one of the finest operettas ever seen here, returns to the Alvin for a week's engagement beginning tonight. The story carries illusion in jungle scenes as well as barbaric beauty in the abandon of its weird dances.

"Hit the Deck," popular musical comedy, comes to the Nixon tonight in a return engagement, for one week only, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Queenie Smith and Charles Purcell are the featured players.

The Gayety Players will present "Lilac Time," beginning tonight, the cast containing Mary Ann Dentler, Robert Lowes, Sidonia Corelli, Frederick Earle, Lora Rogers, George Lessey, Sally Wall and Kenneth Rowland.

Monday evening, November 26, Florenz Ziegfeld's New York musical comedy, Marilyn Miller in "Rosalie," with Jack Donahue, will open in the Nixon. There will be three matinees, Wednesday, Thursday (Thanksgiving) and Saturday.

"The Silent House," which opens its Pittsburgh engagement in the Alvin Monday night, November 26, is a mystery thriller, which comes to Pittsburgh following its nine months' run in New York. Written by John C. Brandon and George Pickett, "The Silent House" is said to be much different from the general run of mystery plays.

The management of the Pitt announces that the Thanksgiving attraction in that playhouse will be Peggy Joyce in "So This Is Love," an adaptation of Jacques Natanson's play of Parisian life.

Livestock Director Quits State College

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The resignation of Dr. H. H. Havner, in charge of livestock extension work of Pennsylvania State College, was announced yesterday by college officials. On January 1, Dr. Havner will assume the position of vice president in charge of service for Philip R. Park, Inc., of San Pedro, Cal.

For the last 10 years Dr. Havner has served as assistant director of agricultural extension at Penn State, in addition to heading the livestock extension work in the state. He is a widely recognized authority on all animal husbandry subjects and is a livestock judge of national prominence.

Roosevelt's N. Y. Victory Conceded By Ottinger

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Albert Ottinger, the Republican candidate for governor, yesterday conceded his defeat and sent a telegram to Franklin D. Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., his successful opponent, congratulating him on his victory in the election.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Informed that his Republican opponent, Albert Ottinger, had conceded his election as governor of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt said:

"In the absence of any official word from Mr. Ottinger, I am very grateful to him for conceding my election as reported by the newspapers."

He would add nothing further to this statement.

He indicated that he might have a more extended statement to make after he had received formal notification of the New York attorney general's concession.

Iroquois Village Unearthed Near Kane, Pa.

KANE, Pa., Nov. 19.—A discovery that will add much to historical knowledge regarding the early occupation of Northwestern Pennsylvania by Indians is the finding of a village site of the hill dwelling tribe of the Iroquois nation fully 800 years ago. The site is nine miles southwest of Kane on woodland owned by H. J. and E. B. James. Through financial aid furnished by J. E. Henretta and W. H. Davis, of Kane, excavations have been made by archeologists of the University of Rochester and of the University of Pennsylvania, who have unearthed quantities of pottery and implements which show the dwelling place to be of considerable antiquity.

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

Veterans of 100 snowball battles

It isn't the fashion nowadays for General Amy and Captain Billy to run home whimpering to mother when damp snowballs trickle down inside their clothes. Wet as their feet may get, soaked to the skin, they carry on bravely, holding their fort of snow against the attacking army.

Nor is it the fashion for mothers to scold children for indulging in such natural play, play that is actually most healthful if proper precautions are taken to prevent later ill effects.

Millions of parents know from their own experience of the tonic and laxative benefits of GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. They have used it for colds. They have taken it for headaches. Immediately after any exposure, out comes the handy white box. So childrens' colds and their own, too, are nipped while they merely threaten....When you want the original cold and grip tablets, which have won first place in world sales, emphasize GROVE'S in asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

BUGS BAER Says

WEEK just folding up has been greatest in history of the shock exchange.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Since Hoover got his citizenship papers as the first duke of the land there have been 4 5 , 0 0 0 , 0 0 0 shares bought, sold and twisted.

The farmers of the muddled west are going to stop growing wheat, corn and rye.

Next spring they are going to raise nothing but huge crops of ticker tape.

Oils, coppers, steels, motors and rails are being knocked off in ten thousand share blocks. There were six million shares sold Friday from nine to three.

The ticker is running sixty minutes behind the market.

Which gives the shorts an hour to think it over before they dive off the wharf.

A broker's life is an easy one.

But hard to live.

The price of a seat on the shock exchange is now half a million.

This is because there are two buyers to every seller.

Joan Realizes She Doesn't Love Curtis After Bill Martin Returns

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, lives with two old maiden aunts and one of them, Aunt Exvie, tells her of her unmarried mother's tragic love affair and death. Joan falls in love with Bill Martin, a penniless young man, and she is sent away to school. Bill, an innocent victim of a bootlegging gang, is sent to jail and Joan, begging for bail money from the aunts, confesses everything to them. She is put on a train for school in charge of a woman friend of Aunt Exvie's. Bill, freed, bids goodby to his mother, leaving no address. Joan, escaping from the train, reaches his home just after he has gone. Concealing her presence from her aunts she gets a position in a department store and later works as a model in a smart shop. There Mrs. Barstow, a rich society woman, sees her and asks her to tea. She meets Curtis Barstow, who immediately becomes interested in her. Bill comes home and discovers Joan is close at hand. He visits her and offers to marry her. Later he disappears after having an argument with his employer. Joan becomes engaged to Curtis. Joan constantly thinks of Bill and plans to break her engagement, but changes her mind. Curtis' mother arranges a dinner in honor of Joan and invites her Aunt Exvie, who disgraces her with her manners. Joan sets the date for her wedding and as the time goes on Curtis becomes bored with the many dinners and parties and asks her to elope with him, but she refuses. Joan tells Curtis about her old love affair with Bill and wants to break their engagement. Curtis leaves town to try to forget her, but returns when he finds he still loves her. Bill returns and Joan sees him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I'M going to marry someone I don't love," she thought, "and it is too late to back out now. I have so much to make up to him. I've cheated him so. . . . Oh, Curtis . . . why didn't I see it would be just another mistake, why didn't I see—before?"

She couldn't help it if she still loved Bill. That was her hard luck. But she could keep from thinking about him—and she would. She must be loyal to Curtis . . . be good to him . . . make up to him . . . for everything . . .

Curtis' plans were almost ready. His mind was made up. Sleepless nights . . . days of indecision . . . couldn't go on that way. Every day brought the wedding nearer, the wedding that couldn't be. He must break the news to his mother, soon. She would be very angry. Take to her bed probably, and have one of those confounded nervous attacks.

After all, you couldn't blame her, it would be embarrassing for all concerned. Short hours wouldn't be the first engagement to be broken at the last moment. She'd get over it. Be glad enough to have him to herself again. He might even take her to Europe for a few months, she had always wanted that.

And Joan . . . what about Joan? "There I go again," he thought miserably, "making a fool of myself over her. A lot she has worried about my happiness! She can take care of herself—she's had experience enough . . . Oh, Johnnie, Johnnie—to think what might have been!"

CHAPTER XXX.

THE wealthy Dutchman who had served as meal ticket and entertainment committee all winter had gone East in the spring, and for once in her life Ruth Gillespie was without "a boy friend." Of course, there was Rollo Keyes, bombarding her with letters, and slightly stale chocolates from the South—but he was too far away to count.

She was on her way home, feeling "low in her mind" in spite of the new black satin outfit that had cost five weeks' salary, and made her look like a Baron de Meyer photograph, when someone called her name—"Ruth!"

She wheeled sharply. "Great Scott—William—where did you drop from?"

"Texas!"

"You sure don't look it. Dear old London, or little old N' York more like it. Stand still and let me look at you. It it isn't good just to do that. Say, if you aren't the lemon doing the disappearing act that way, though—and me crying my eyes out, thinking you didn't love me any more!"

She looked into his eyes, and laughed, her charming bubbling laugh. The little dimples near her mouth quivered, her round brown eyes danced with merriment.

He grinned and took her arm—"Come on to a beanery. I've been waiting on the corner, watching your old millinery window for an hour. Thought you'd never shut up shop. If that isn't a sign of love, on the part of a hungry man—"

"Waiting for me—or Joan—" she asked quickly, and could have bit her tongue off the next moment. Fool. To remind him—

"Joan—is she still working?"

"Some might call it that."

But he looked so cold and strained she added quickly, "Oh you know what I mean—she's Madame's pet—goes home any old time. That's how you've missed her. Say—how long have you been waiting outside for Joan, passing me up, eh?"

"Not very long," he said. "Care where we eat? Is a grill all right? Let's go to one of those places where they have booths. I want to talk to you—Lord it's been a long time."

"Yes, I know what you want to talk about," she thought, reading his still boyish face, his candid blue eyes. "Joan!" And she answered, "Anywhere at all, Will'um honey—here, at Fred's will do."

At dinner she chattered for a little while, cleverly, putting him at his ease again. Gay friendly Ruth!

But over the coffee and cigarets he came back to the thing that was on his mind, the thing he had come to ask. "I understand Joan is going to be married soon."

"Oh yes—they're making quite a fuss about it. Pictures in the papers and what not. It seems our Johnnie is some kind of big potatoes herself—"

"She's a Van Fleet," he said, absently.

"Ahh—so you know all about Joan!"

"I know all about her people," he amended. "They are a very old family, sort of a tradition. Everyone in Marin knows their property, and I suppose the old-timers on this side—"

"Oh—I thought you and Joan were sweethearts," she said slyly.

He didn't raise his eyes from his plate, but the knuckles of his hand stood out whitely. "Where did you get that idea?"

"Joan."

"I suppose one might call it that," he said after a pause. "I thought an awful lot of her, anyway, when I was a kid."

Her brown eyes were soft with sympathy. "These kid affairs," she sighed. "Gosh, the times my young heart was broke!" She laughed again. "Give me another cigaret."

"I hope she will be very happy," he said finally. "She's a fine girl. You know the man, don't you? He has a mighty fine reputation—"

"Yes, I know him," she said. Her thoughts were darting back and forth, scheming, planning, quickly—quickly—"he is really an awfully nice sort, and they're frightfully in love—it embarrasses me to look at 'em!"

She saw him wince, but he spoke heartily enough. "Well, that's the way it ought to be. Can't imagine anyone getting married if they're not in love. When is your wedding coming off, Ruth?"

"Mine!" Listen to him—say, a fat chance I have of getting married with that old ogre of a father of Rollo's sitting on his money bags, growling like a bulldog with a sore tooth—"

"Yes, come off that, Ruth. Old Man Keyes is a wonder—"

"Wonder! Wonder of a tightwad—selfish old pig—"

"Best friend I ever had, Ruth."

She looked at him sharply. "Because he gave you a job, and made you work hard—you can't tell me—I know. Rollo himself said you slaved for him—"

"Oh, no—that isn't so. He—well—he's been everything to me. I'd be riding a brakebeam this minute, I guess, if it hadn't been for him. He—"

"Say, he didn't settle something on you, did he?" Her shrewd eyes searched him again. Bill had always looked prosperous, but there was a different air about him this trip. An air of assurance. He wasn't a boy with a good job any longer, he was a man with an assured future—she knew—she'd seen enough to know—

He grinned, boyishly now. "Better than that. Want to hear about it?"

"Of course I do, Will'um—" She reached over and squeezed his hand, his nice strong hand, with the slender brown fingers.

"We're partners!" he laughed, and thumped his chest.

"No! In partnership with Emmet Keyes—"

"Oh, just on one deal—don't get excited! Still it sounds good, doesn't it? You see it was this way. I—well—I kind of blew up after I went back. Rollo and I were hitting it up pretty high, Rollo trying to drown his sorrows, and I helping him and—well—the old man called me down.

"He was all in the right. Wanted me to go back to the oil fields and go to work. I got on the train all right, but I didn't get off at Bakersfield, I guess I had the itching foot. I wanted to hoof it. It didn't seem worth while working at the time—"

"Boys will be boys," Ruth murmured. ("As if I don't know why Bill Martin—all cut up over Joan's engagement—I know.")

"But it didn't work out. I got sick of it. I begged a few meals—that woke me up, so I went to work. Got a job around the oil fields for a while. There was some talk about something doing out in Texas—that gave me an excuse to go on. To cut it short it wasn't all talk, it looked like a big thing to me, and I thought it might be my way of making up to the old man for the raw deal I'd handed him, walking out without any reason, so I beat it back and—"

"William Martin, do you mean to say you struck some rich oil proposition, and you're in on it with Old Man Keyes—"

Modern Eve -:- -:- By Madge Geyer

LONG long ago in the Garden of Eden, the game of Love started. Mother Eve was the originator of all the lovely wiles and coquetries that have come down the ages as part of her daughters' and granddaughters' and the many, many generations thereafter, heritage. Each generation has added, in its own way, to the knowledge which woman has acquired, in her everlasting search for Love. But way down in the bottom of their hearts they are all the same. Outwardly, different; at heart, exactly alike.

They tease and coquette and pout and plague, and tempt and run away—until the poor men are so dizzy they don't know what to do. Modern Eve may not use the apple when she stages her Temptation Scene, but she uses it's equivalent—and that's Dan Cupid—tucked comfortably away in whatever apple may be used as bait. Sometimes the bait is money; that's tragedy. Sometimes it's beauty—that never lasts! Oftenest it's a heart—that's what lasts always. And Dan gurgles in glee to know that the Modern Eve still plays her original role—only with a different ending. Then it spelled banishment; now it's Happiness, Love and Contentment.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion Reveals Her Hidden Treasure to Madge

"WILL you come over here, Auntie Madge?" Marion asked, when she had locked the door of her room, and I rose from my chair and crossed the room to the cedar chest which I know is one of her proudest possessions. Her mother gave it to her upon her fourteenth birthday, but Marion always has devoted only part of its space to keeping moths away from her woolen frocks. The rest is assigned to the heterogeneous collection of treasures which youngsters accumulate.

She opened it and began to dump upon the floor the objects comprising the top layer. A huge stamp album, two or three fancy workbaskets, each containing, I know, several unfinished pieces of needlework, an elaborate outfit for making artificial beads, a coloring outfit, a file of her favorite magazine, a collection of ship pictures—a number of photographs taken by herself—all these piled around me before she lifted from the bottom of the chest a box which I had seen once or twice before, and which I greatly admired.

It was an old-fashioned sandalwood lock box, probably more than a century old. It was surprisingly thick of wood, so that there was but little space inside of it. Lillian had told me years before that it belonged to her mother-in-law and that the old woman had kept in it her few old-fashioned bits of jewelry. She always had said that it would belong to Marion some day, and a few weeks before she died she asked to see her granddaughter alone. When Marion came out bitterly weeping, she carried the box with her. Lillian had told me of the persistence with which Marion clung to the box, insisting that she have a trunk with a key into which she could put it, and how she always kept the key hidden. My friend had laid the child's oddity of behavior to her exaggerated love for her grandmother, but suddenly, as I looked at the box and saw Marion's tense face, I wondered if there was something really of importance concealed in the box, something which was a part of the "secret" which the young girl wished to tell me.

"You know this was my grandmother's box," Marion said as she held it up before me.

"Yes, I have seen it before," I answered.

"But there's something about it you don't know," she said excitedly, "something which nobody knows in all the world except me. But I'm going to tell you now, for I want somebody else to know it. Then if anything happened to me, you could tell mother."

I waited for her revelation, but instead of speaking, she sat down in the nearest chair and ran her fingers over the box caressingly, as if it were something sentient. And when she spoke it was reminiscently.

"You know I lived with my grandmother before we both came to live with mother," she began. "My grandmother liked my mother, but she used to whisper to me that she didn't want me to forget my father.

"'He wasn't a very good man, even if he was my son,' she used to say, 'and that awful woman—she meant the woman my father married—'has taken all the money. But he's looked out for you, darling, and the fortune's all here. It isn't worth anything now, so don't look at it, but it will be. But you mustn't tell your mother anything about it, and you mustn't do anything about it until you're 18. By that time the fortune'll come true. Then you can give your mother anything you want to. But you mustn't tell her anything about it until you're 18, for she might spoil it all.'

"My grandmother made me promise her solemnly that my mother should know nothing about the box until I was 18," she repeated. "But she didn't know you," she went on with ingenious sophistry, "so it won't be breaking my promise to tell you. Look here!"

She turned a key in the lock of the box, threw up the lid and gently removed the old trinkets it contained. Then she removed the top tray and pressed upon the center of the shallow second tray. It divided in the center and rose, exposing a secret compartment beneath in which were crowded three long envelopes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Contented Mind Is Health Essential

A TIRED face hurts my soul. I wish it were not necessary for people to wear themselves out to make a living or to carry the burdens of life.

DR. COPELAND

After a face becomes lined with care and fatigue there comes another thing to mar it. A certain hardness creeps into the features. There is a set of the jaw and lines about the eyes that are not pleasant to see.

I do not mean that the beauty may be damaged by such lines. Indeed, some of the most striking faces of history have shown these marks.

It is not the "looks" I have in mind. I am thinking of what is going on in the brain of that afflicted one. The natural sweetness of disposition, kindliness, patience, forbearance, charity and genuine goodness are being impaired. Next comes recklessness or indifference.

A contented mind is essential to good health. Fatigue, worry, surrender to circumstances—these are steps in the impairment of body, as well as mind.

The first week in January is "inventory week" with most business men. At that time they count up the figures to see whether the year just ended is one of profit or loss. Not only is this the purpose of the appraisal, but also it is to clear the desks for another year of business.

How often do you take inventory of your soul and body? Surely, your personal welfare is just as important as the financial welfare of any business man in the world. It means everything to you certainly.

An occasional check up is good for you. Perhaps you have not reviewed your affairs. It may be well that you are worried, perhaps unconsciously worried over trifles. Even if they are far more important than trifles, they may be evils that can be removed by a little energy or ingenuity.

You may not be captain of your fate absolutely, but, after all, there are few experiences in life that cannot be modified or improved by the exercise of good sense. If they can be overcome, you should make every effort to get rid of troubles that are undermining your health and threatening your influence.

I am resigned to the fact that there are troubles beyond the hope of removal. In that event, there must be developed a philosophy that will make it possible to endure cheerfully what cannot be mended. I suppose that is what religion is for, but that subject I shall leave to the preachers.

It is a pity, however, for a naturally healthy body to become clogged and seriously damaged by mental worries. But sure as fate, it will be unless you develop your fighting spirit and determine to ride down your cares.

We may argue over the relationship of mind and body. You may say the diseased mind is responsible always for the damaged body—I may put it the other way. But plain, ordinary common sense should teach us that cares that can be overcome, should be overcome. We cannot afford to harbor unnecessary worries. They pave the way for physical ills.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

No Nicknames

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Regarding a baby named Francis Edward being so registered and having Francis Edward on the birth certificate, kindly answer these questions.

1. Is it good form to send announcement cards using a nickname as Frank Edward?

2. The father's name is Francis Edward. Could "Jr." be added to the Francis Edward on the announcement:

Francis Edward, Jr.,

or

IN such a formal thing as a birth announcement, the formal name should be used. To use the nickname would not be good form or good taste.

2. Yes, this is the correct thing to do. The name on the announcement should be:

Francis Edward Harris, Jr.,

Francis Edward Harris, junior.

(That is, if the junior is abbreviated, it is written with a capital. If it is not abbreviated it is written with a small letter.)

The Girl Hostess

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am a member of a club which is planning to give an affair. I have asked a boy friend to escort me to this dance. Is it proper for me to pay for his ticket as well as for mine in advance? If not, shall he pay for them at the door?

H. M.

SINCE you are one of the hostesses of the party, and since you have invited this boy to be your guest, it seems to be reasonable and consistent that you complete your hospitality by buying the tickets. I think that if a girl plans to be a hostess, she should be a real hostess and provide all the details. It is very simple for her to buy the tickets and thus she spares her invited partner all the embarrassment of not knowing what is expected of him. For instance, she could, after he has accepted her invitation, write him a note saying that she is sending them to him "for safe-keeping."

This question that you ask is one that is eternally perplexing to girls, and I recommend always that they look the matter straight in the eye and do the thing that will make their guests as much at ease as possible. Naturally a man does not know what is expected of him (since even the girl usually doesn't), and she should make an effort to take the uncertainty away from the situation as much as she can.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, November 20

THIS day's stellar operations hold presage of many complications and intricacies which it may call for much discernment and wise counsel to properly manipulate. Employment is under a baneful ray of the luminaries in square aspect, consequently it is urged that every precaution be taken not to merit criticism, censure or dismissal. New undertakings are also menaced and there are subtle and sinister phases to other business as well as personal affairs calling for astute management. The finances are fortified by a friendly Jupiter.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year calling for astute and clever management of all affairs if they would escape complications and complex problems. Safeguard the employment and postpone new ventures.

A child born on this day may have many excellent qualities and talents for success, but should also be equipped to surmount many adverse conditions and subtleties.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

How to Hold Onto Your Husband

ONCE, if a girl could get a man as far as the altar, she sat down and breathed a long, sweet sigh of relief. Her life-job was practically over. Nothing more to do but to run the ribbons in her lingerie, keep the hearth fires burning and patronize her spinster friends!

* * *

The marriage certificate was as strong as steel. Law was law, honor was honor, a married man was a married man, and a wife was a life proposition!

HELEN ROWLAND

But now—oh, the difference to us! The wedding is just the start in the love-chase. And the feat of a woman's life is not getting a husband, but holding ONTO him, after she's got him.

* * *

Men are so restless, divorce is so easy and popular and positively "swank," that all the good old marriage-ties are getting as loose and flabby as a pair of last year's garters!

* * *

No man seems to feel legally bound to go right on loving a woman, just because he married her and signed a promise to that effect.

And yet, the advice-givers go right on handing out the same old bunk about "how to hold a husband" by keeping your hair neat, feeding the brute, and cultivating your personality.

There is only one sure way to hold your man, these slippery days, and that is by making a FIRM of marriage—by tying your lives and your spirits together with mutual aims, interests, work and ideals. By working together for the same goal, whether it's building a home, rearing a family, making a fortune or carrying on a professional career. By pooling your interests and sharing your failures or victories, your hopes, your secrets and your profits.

"Keep your hair neat and your nose powdered." Of course! But don't forget that there are 20 love pirates right around the corner, who spend half their lives between the scented bath and the looking glass.

"Feed the brute." Why not? But don't fancy that flour-and-water paste will hold a man against applesauce and imported perfume.

"Don't nag him." I should hope NOT! But remember that every downtown office is full of sweet little professional "sympathizers," who make a business of "understanding" men whose wives never dreamed of nagging them.

"Cultivate charm and keep him vamped." Yea, verily. But never imagine that you can hold any man by "sex-appeal" now that it is as plentiful as silk stockings and as common as rouged lips.

No, dear heart! Marriage is no longer a confidence game, in which a woman can win by a bag of tricks. It's a PARTNERSHIP—or nothing. And the only wife who can be sure of her husband is the one who makes herself his partner in his great business called LIFE.

Partners grow closer and closer together until they are welded by a thousand strings of interests and interdependence—and nothing but death or dynamite can separate them!

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl -:- Story by Lloyd Mayer -:- By John Held, Jr.

WELL MR BULL AS A FOOTBALL PLAYER YOU ARE A FINE STUDENT, WE WOULD HAVE WON THAT GAME LAST WEEK IF YOU HADN'T BEEN KEPT OUT ON ACCOUNT OF YOUR OLD PSYCHOLOGY!
AW BUT THIS WEEK PREX SAYS I CAN PLAY. ALL I HAVE TO DO IS CATCH UP WITH MY GEOMETRY! THAT'S ALL!
OH GEE, ARAB!
TA TA BULL! SEE YOU IN GEOMETRY CLASS!

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-BIB-and-TUCKer at this point—I mean I'm PRACticably ready to ROLL over and BUTter myself with disMAY because I simply KNOW we'd have won that FOOTball game last week, my dear, if that adorable BULL person hadn't been inELigible on account of that FOUL psyCHOLogy course that has him all hot and BOTHered—can you COPE with it? But what makes me so MAD I could gargle BUTtermilk is that when I TOLD him as much toDAY, my dear, he just reGARDed me with an expression of UTter asiNINity and remarked that PREXy had said he could play THIS week if he got caught up in his geOMetry or something! HONestly, my dear, I was fit to be TIED at that point but ANYways, my dear, ARab appeared on the scene in that perverted FLIVver of his just in TIME to hear this IMbecile reMARK of BULL'S, so of course, my dear, he imMEdiately began RAZZing the great OAF because I mean the MINute I'd scrambled HEAVily into this comPANionate CARriage and we'd started frenziedly OFF, Arab told BULL to figure out the RIGHT angle of this TRIangle—can you BEAR it, my dear? But I mean I HONestly think if BULL was clever enough to do THAT, my dear, he'd realize he was the obTUSE angle, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE GIRL WITHOUT "IT"

By EMILY BURTON

IN a big ugly house that stood far back from the roadway lived Joan Cozart. Here in this small New Jersey town, an hour's ride from Manhattan, Joan had spent most of her life. Recently her grandmother had died, leaving the girl alone in the world.

The fact that her grandmother's will provided for her needs did not lessen the girl's loneliness. She had always been lonely. As a child she had not been allowed to play with other children. As a school girl she had been timid and aloof. She wished with a mighty yearning that she did have some youthful companions; but other young people of the community seemed unaware of her existence.

Once she overheard a conversation concerning herself.

"She's not bad looking," said a man's voice, "but she is so dumb."

A girl's voice added: "She has less personality than anybody I ever saw. She is absolutely devoid of 'It'."

Those thoughtless remarks cut Joan to the quick. She wondered how this much-talked-of "It" could be acquired. She had never had a second glance from an attractive man; and she was unhappy about that sad state of affairs.

One day she was shopping in New York. It was while she was trying on hats in a little uptown shop that she first saw Elsie Gay. Now Elsie was all that Joan wanted to be—pretty, vivacious and graceful, with a contagious laugh and a friendly manner. Joan lingered in the hat shop longer than necessary just to talk with the young saleswoman.

"I'm dying to get out in the country," declared Elsie. "I hate New York in summertime."

On the impulse of the moment, Joan invited the stranger to visit her. After some discussion it was agreed that Elsie was to spend the week-end at the old Cozart home in New Jersey.

A real friendship between the two girls began during that brief visit. When the visitor returned on Monday morning to the city it was understood that she was to come back for the next week-end and bring her room-mate, Reba Moore.

Reba and Elsie reveled in the quiet and comfort of the country. Joan was overjoyed at having some young people in the house.

"You are an angel to let us come out here," declared Reba. "You have no idea how many girls are sweltering behind stone walls, longing for a breath of the country."

"Do you know any others?" asked Joan. "I haven't much to offer except this empty house, but I'd love to have anyone you care to invite."

That's how it came about that the old Cozart home became a house of happiness for girls who otherwise could not afford week-ends in the country.

It was quite natural that the friends and sweethearts of these girls should also find their way to this joyous spot.

That was a happy summer for Joan. For the first time in her life she belonged to a crowd. She was included in their good times. She lost some of her awkwardness and drabness. She learned to swim and dance and play bridge. She learned to dress better and to speak the language of her new acquaintances.

Then one bright Sunday morning, Mike Denham came with other young men. Mike was a big handsome blond, with kindly blue eyes and a firm-set mouth. Joan's heart skipped a beat the first time he looked at her. He was entirely courteous, but paid little attention to anybody. It was understood that every visitor should spend the day to suit himself. And Mike chose to spend his morning in the hammock under the trees.

Late in the afternoon the crowd went swimming; but Mike lay on the beach and watched the others.

It was not until supper time that he came to life. While Joan slipped away to the kitchen to begin preparations for the informal meal, Mike came in with his arms full of packages.

"Let's have some bacon and eggs," he suggested.

At that moment Reba and Elsie appeared in the doorway, having come to assist in the supper arrangement. Elsie caught Reba's arm and propelled her gently away.

"Give Joan a chance," she whispered. "Nothing gets a man like seeing a girl pottering around a kitchen. They love those domestic pictures."

Joan broiled bacon and fried eggs while Denham stood close by trying to help and looking more interested than he had appeared all day.

"Please let me come back again," he begged as he said goodby that evening.

"You can always come back again," answered Joan, without knowing how much her tone was saying.

The next Sunday brought Mike Denham again. And the next and the next and the next.

Finally it became an accepted fact that Mike and Joan should pair off. Whether they rode, danced, swam or walked, Mike was always at Joan's side.

"I like you because you are so quiet and comfortable," he told her one day. "I'm tired of girls brandishing their pep and personality around."

"Somebody said I was absolutely devoid of 'it'," she confessed, hoping he would deny the statement.

"Maybe that's why you are so sweet," he smiled. "I don't know what their confounded 'It' includes but I hate it."

Toward the end of that happy summer Mike Denham came out one evening in mid-week.

"I wanted to see you alone," he explained. "I want to ask you something, Joan."

"What is it?" she gasped.

She knew what he was going to say. It doesn't take experience for a woman to read love in a man's eyes, and his eyes spoke plainly enough. But she wanted to hear him say it.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Denham now spend their winters in New York City. But every summer their big old house in New Jersey is thrown open and girls who need a breath of sunshine and happiness find it in that hospitable home.

VISCOUNTESS GREY DIES

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The Daily Mail yesterday announced the death of Viscountess Pamela Grey after a sudden illness, at her home at Wilsford Manor, Salisbury. Her husband, the former secretary for foreign affairs, was at his Fallodan estate and was hurriedly summoned.

The Viscountess, who was the daughter of the late Percy Wyndham, was 57 years of age. She first married Lord Glenconner, who died in 1920. They had three sons and a daughter.

In 1922 she married Viscount Edward Grey, who had been a widower for 16 years. She was the author of several books and was a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature.

Dr. Alexander Ziwet Of U. of Mich. Dies

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 19.—Dr. Alexander Ziwet, 61, for 37 years a member of the faculty of the University of Michigan, died here yesterday. Prior to his retirement in 1925 he was head of the engineering-mathematics department and before that headed the modern language department. Dr. Ziwet was born and educated in Germany.

Mother, Son Victims Of Hit-Run Autoist

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edna Houser and her small son were injured yesterday when struck by an automobile while walking on the Harrison City road. The boy suffered a possible fracture of the skull and the mother bruises and cuts. Police were searching for the driver of the car, said to have been a man named Garvin of Greensburg.

CARNEGIE NEARS NATIONAL TITLE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Grid Glory for City.
Plaid Near Big Title.
Excels Entire Field.
Pitt's Tie Creditable.
Notre Dame Records.
Huston After Robins.

HARPSTER ALL-AMERICA BOOM GROWS

WITH Carnegie Tech contributing the sensation of the day by crushing Notre Dame's mighty forces under the huge score of 27 to 7, and Pitt holding Nebraska's giants to a pointless tie and preventing them from making a single first down, Saturday's gridiron results raised Pittsburgh's already eminent position on the football map for 1928 to the prominence of red ink.

No other city in the country can boast such a one-day achievement on the barred field this year as the Skibos and Panthers placed to the credit of Father Pitt in that remarkable twin feat away from home, on fields where their powerful opponents had been rated as superior to any invaders.

Howard Harpster

CARNEGIE may justly be ranked as the outstanding team of the nation after the glorious triumph over Notre Dame. Not merely did the Tartans keep their great record for the season unmarred by a defeat or a tie, but in amassing such an extraordinary score as 27 points over the conquerors of the Army they gave evidence of power and speed that probably could not be found on any other eleven on the main collegiate line.

More than the mere Eastern leadership is now within the reach of the Plaid. Two rivals for the National honors were eliminated Saturday, when Pitt helped the Carnegie cause by tying Nebraska, and Iowa suffered its first defeat at the hands of Wisconsin. In the East, Boston College has not been beaten nor tied, and in the South, Georgia Tech, Tennessee and Florida still have similar clean slates, but, though Georgia Tech defeated Notre Dame, 13 to 0, none of them has played such a difficult schedule on the whole as that of the Schenley Park boys, and if Judge Steffen's gridders succeed in downing New York U. here next Saturday they can hardly be denied recognition as champions of the country and will be the logical choice for the Tournament of Roses post-season game on the Pacific Coast.

PLAYING his usual great game in running, kicking and passing, aside from demonstrating again his rare qualities of leadership in directing Carnegie's whirlwind attack, Capt. Howard Harpster, to all unbiased minds, just about clinched his right to be chosen as All-American quarterback for 1928. It is hard to see how any of the Eastern or Western critics who saw Saturday's exhibition in South Bend can longer deny Harpster the ranking to which he appears clearly entitled as the country's greatest quarter.

And speaking of All-American selections, Pittsburgh has another player who deserves a whole lot of consideration. When you weigh what Mike Getto has done in every game at right tackle for the Panthers this year—he was brilliant again in the battle with Nebraska—it is hard to figure where there is a better tackle in the U. S. A.

ORDINARILY there is little nourishment in so-called moral victories, but there is much satisfaction for Pitt followers in something of that sort which the Panthers registered in Lincoln. It is no small feat to hold the giant Nebraskans to a scoreless tie on their own grounds, and as Pitt did even more than that by outplaying their huge foemen and making eight first downs while yielding none to the enemy, the result must be viewed as being pretty much on the order of a victory for the Blue and Gold.

Mike Getto

IN KEEPING Nebraska from making a first down, the Panthers added another link to a remarkable chain of evidence attesting their great defensive strength. Dr. Sutherland's gridders have been scored on by only two opponents this season, for a total of but 15 points all told, and even in those two games they showed rare defensive qualities, particularly in the line.

Saturday's game was the fifth major engagement of the year for Pitt, and with the single exception of one first-and-ten registered by W. & J. after Coach Sutherland had sent in 10 substitute players, four of the five opponents in those contests were unable to make a first down through the line. Carnegie made four, but in the West Virginia, Syracuse, W. & J. and Nebraska games the lone first down credited to the Presidents was the only one registered against Pitt through the line or by running attack. All others were made on passes.

CHICK MEEHAN'S ace, Ken Strong, who leads all Eastern college players in points scored this season, gave more evidence on Saturday that he will be the main menace to Carnegie Tech in the big game at Forbes Field this week-end. He scored 21 of New York U.'s 26 points against Missouri, boosting his season's total to 139. He has made 19 touchdowns and three goals after touchdowns.

The Violet left halfback first put New York in the lead Saturday by throwing a long forward pass in the opening period; he scored twice in the second quarter, once on a 15-yard run and again on a dive through the line, and in the final period he tore off a sprint of 77 yards for his third touchdown of the afternoon.

TED ROSENCWEIG, Len Schnupp, John Dreshar and Andy Yerina, former Bellefonte Academy players on the Carnegie Tech squad, will find an old school mate opposing them at Forbes Field next Saturday. Coach Meehan announces that Hill, a Bellefonte product, will be found in his usual place at right halfback for New York U. Hill will be used mainly as an interferer, and the bulk of the attack will be assigned to Strong and Follett, though Meehan predicts that the Skibos will also be given plenty of trouble by O'Herin, another back, whom he considers almost as valuable as Strong as a triple-threat man.

CARNEGIE mussed up more than one Notre Dame record. To begin with, the defeat was the first suffered by the Fighting Irish on their own field since Wabash beat them there in 1905 by a score of 5 to 0. In the second place, it marked the first time that Notre Dame has lost three games in a season since Knute Rockne succeeded Joe Harper, of Chicago University, as coach in 1918, and, thirdly, the score of 27 points equaled the largest total ever made against a Rockne-coached eleven.

In only one other season prior to 1928 did Notre Dame, under Rockne, lose more than one game. That was in 1925, when the Irish were defeated by the Army and Nebraska. They lost one in 1918 to the Michigan Aggies, one in 1921 to Iowa, one in 1922 and one in 1923 to Nebraska, one in 1926 to Carnegie, one in 1927 to the Army, and three this year to Wisconsin, Georgia Tech and Carnegie. The Army and Nebraska are the only teams except the skibos that have ever beaten Rockne teams more than once. Nebraska has done it three times and the Army twice.

Chick Meehan

THAT spells a total of only 11 games lost in 11 years, or an average of but one to a season. During the same period, Notre Dame has been played to a tie only five times—in 1918 by the Great Lakes (Ill.) Naval Training Station team and Nebraska in 1922 by the Army; in 1925 by Penn State, and in 1927 by Minnesota. Against those 11 defeats and five ties under Rockne's 11-year regime, Notre Dame has won 86 games. Quite a record, any way you look at it, and particularly with the majority of the bigger and harder games being played away from home.

The Army has been the only team except Tech to make as many

ROBERT CARTER

Cue fans in the Oakland district are confident that Robert Carter, winner of the Pittsburgh Three-Cushion Billiard League title in last season's race, will emerge victor again in the second campaign, which got under way about a fortnight ago. The Kalmet parlor's entrant is one of the league's best scorers and has to score 48 to win whereas most of the contestants shoot for 40 or 45.

COUGARS DEFEAT BUCS

DETROIT, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—The Detroit Cougars, led by George Hay and Lawrence Aurie outpassed Benny Leonard's Pittsburgh Pirates here last night to win a National Professional Hockey League game by a 3 to 1 score. Eight thousand persons saw the game.

Although the Pirates fought every inch of the way they were unable to stop the Cougar passing combination and the added fact that Dollie Dolson, new Cougar goalie, was having a good night made their chances for a victory even more slim. Dolson took shots from all angles and stopped the Pittsburgh offense every time it broke through Capt. Reg Noble and Puss Traub, Detroit defense men.

Hay broke through to score early in the first period and Cooper followed on a pass from Hay in the same period. Then Tex White took a pass from Mickey MacKay to score the Pirates' only marker. Late in the final period Herbie Lewis got away to score the third point for the Cougars, unassisted. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—1.		Detroit—3.
Miller	G	Dolson
McCaffrey	D	Traub
Holloway	D	Noble
Milks	C	Herberts
Darragh	W	Hay
Cotton	W	Aurie

Pittsburgh subs—R. Smith, McCurry, Drury, White, McKinnon, MacKay. Detroit subs—Fraser, Cooper, Lewis, Connors. Officials—Ritchie and Lafamme. Summary—First period: Goals—Hay (unassisted), 12.15; Cooper (Hay), 13.42. White (MacKay), 19.52. Penalties—Detroit, Traub, Fraser, Pittsburgh, McKinnon, Drury. Second period: Goals—No scoring. Penalties—Herberts (roughing), Cotton (hooking). Third period: Scoring—Lewis (unassisted), 14.17.

RANGERS-AMERICANS TIE

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The world champion New York Rangers went into a tie for first place in the American group of the National Hockey League last night by getting a 1-1 tie with their home town rivals, Americans, in the local opening of the season at Madison Square Garden. The lineup:

Americans—1.		Rangers—1.
Walsh	G	Roach
Heiser	R.D	Abel
Conacher	L.D	Johnson
Burch	C	Boucher
Broadbent	R.W	Bill Cook
Shepard	L.W	Bun Cook

American spares—Himes, Connor, Simpson, Spring, Dye. Ranger spares—Boyd, Murdock, Thompson, Keeling, Lake, Bourgeault. Officials—Lou Marsh and George Madigan. Score summary—First period: Burch, Americans, 7:40. 2. Keeling, Rangers, 19:57. Penalties—Broadbent, Bun Cook, Johnson, Conacher (2), one a major.

AL BROWN IN DRAW

PARIS, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Al Brown, New York Negro featherweight, was held to a draw in his 15-round match with Johnny Cuthbert, English featherweight, here tonight. Brown started strongly, but the British star took every round after the eighth.

MID-WEST GRID STOCK TAKES BIG DROP

By JESS CARVER, Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(En route from Nebraska game)—What a sweet kicking around mid-Western football stock took Saturday. Pittsburgh and New York combined to check three of the leaders in this territory, and in the case of the Smoky City eleven, turned the trick right out here in the great open spaces. Carnegie Tech's decisive route of Notre Dame and the light Pitt eleven's feat of holding powerful and unbeaten Nebraska to a scoreless deadlock, outplaying the Huskers in the doing, were the outstanding games of the day. New York walloped the Missouri Tigers unmercifully, though not as bad as Nebraska did two weeks ago.

The Middle West, loyal to the Cornhuskers prior to the sad showing of the Giants against Pitt, has rallied to the standard of Carnegie Tech, and today the praises of the Tartans are being sung to the high heavens. Tech is the choice of the Middle West for the national championship, as there are few who will

Pitt Strategists Pull Fast One On Panthers

By JESS CARVER, Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Plenty smart, these Pitt folks. In an attempt to get the boys keyed up to the proper pitch for the game with Nebraska at Lincoln on Saturday, the Panther strategy board (I won't mention any names), put over a fast one and gave movie fans of Omaha somewhat of a thrill. The Panther party stayed in Omaha Friday night prior to the game, and after supper were herded together and taken to a movie. Imagine their embarrassment when the first pictures they looked at after taking their seats were the photos of the Pitt-Tech game.

Oh, you should have heard the boos and catcalls that went up. Right off the bat, Luby Dimeolo gave the show a nice long Hoboken cheer, and then someone, I think it was Abie Parkinson, moved that mayhem be "committed" against the person of the theater manager.

Nevertheless, the stunt worked, and when the boys arrived back at the hotel they were fighting mad. They took it that some wise baby was trying to kid 'em, and, best of all, they took it out on poor Nebraska.

The film was brought from Pittsburgh by a member of the Pitt party, arrangements made with the Omaha theater and the party then staged. Clever, these Chinese.

SYSTEM REACHES PEAK

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

CARNEGIE TECH in its greatest season this year is reaping the reward of its labors during the leaner campaigns of the regime of Judge Walter P. Steffen as coach.

Time was when Carnegie was not so well endowed with playing material as it is now and Steffen had to resort to the inventiveness of his mind to enable his elevens to cope with their more formidable opponents on something like an even basis. Out of that condition was evolved an intricate system of deceptive play that has been elaborated on to such an extent that today the Tartans boast probably the most varied attack of any eleven in the land.

Never was this better demonstrated than in the 27-7 victory over Notre Dame at South Bend last Saturday. Half of the time the Notre Dame players were at a loss to determine which player had the ball. The versatility of the Tartan offensive had the Irish completely baffled, resulting in consistently long gains that came with startling suddenness and left the home team nonplussed. As one of the Notre Dame players remarked after the battle:

"You can't stop an attack that you can't see. Talk about the hidden ball plays of the Pena 'Magicians' and other teams, they are not in it with the stuff those Tech boys flash on you. Half of the time we didn't know where the ball was."

And he was entirely correct. The reverse plays, sneak plays, feints, fake kicks that turned into passes or runs and other complicated bits of maneuvering that were run off with clocklike precision were unstoppable. The plays generally developed into what they were least expected to be.

Tech's seasons of lean material were not in vain. They served their purpose as the foundation on which one of the greatest attacking systems the game has known has been built.

BATTLE HARD FOUGHT

Although Carnegie won decisively over the Irish, the game by no means was a picnic for the Plaid. It was hard-fought and anything but free from rough stuff. Several of the Tartans came out of the battle with black eyes, and Schmidt, the tackle, had one of his optics entirely closed from coming in contact with a fist early in the fray. In return, many of the Irish players had to be taken out of the game and replaced by reserves after becoming exhausted from attempting to halt the relentless driving of the Tartans. The Tech players say the tussle was rougher than that with Georgetown at Albany, N. Y., the week before. They knew they were in a fight, although the issue never was in doubt after the second play following Notre Dame's opening kickoff, Capt. Harpster's pass to Rosenzweig, who ran to the 12-yard line, from which point Letzelter dashed off tackle and cut in for the goal line.

NO TIME FOR LETDOWN

Fortunately, with the struggle with New York University at Forbes Field next Saturday, winding up the Plaid's season, still to be played, none of the Tech men was seriously hurt. Dutch Eyth, the halfback, had to be taken out because of an injured shoulder after intercepting a pass and placing his team in position for the second touchdown, and he was the most serious casualty. He likely will be able to play in the windup engagement.

In connection with the N. Y. U. game, it might be advisable at this stage for the Tartan players to defer their general celebration of the splendid season until after that battle. True, they cannot be expected to fail to enthuse over their marvelous exhibition against and decisive conquest of Notre Dame on the latter's field—the first time the Irish have been beaten at home in 23 years—but they must keep their feet on the ground and guard against a letdown in fighting spirit for the N. Y. U. game. New York University is plenty tough and anxious to atone for its fluke 7-2 defeat by Georgetown, which eliminated it from the race for the Eastern and National championships, and nothing would please it better than to get back into a tie for the top position by defeating the Tartans, victors over Wash.-Jeff., Pitt, Georgetown and Notre Dame, the conqueror of Army.

Overconfidence alone can spoil Tech's season now, and I believe the Tech players are sufficiently level-headed to realize this. Beating Notre Dame by such a wide margin was a notable achievement, but a defeat by New York University virtually would offset it and would be a catastrophe for the machine that has come through so nobly thus far. After today's celebration the memory of what was accomplished at South Bend must be tucked away on the shelf until after the N. Y. U. battle is over and won, when it can be dragged out and lived over as part of the most glorious chapter in Carnegie Tech gridiron history. Hard work is ahead this week. Hard work and caution. Then the fireworks!

HOW TARTANS CLICKED

Just how smoothly Tech functioned Saturday is apparent from a review of the manner in which it scored and baffled the efforts of Rockne's men to retaliate. The Plaid's first touchdown came in three plays that netted 71 yards, and the second in seven plays from the 28-yard line after Eyth had intercepted a pass. The third represented a drive of 65 yards in three plays, the last two plays of the first period and the first of the second. Less than five minutes after the start of play, the score was 12-0, and Notre Dame was on the run. The final touchdown, in the fourth period, was a 22-yard pass play from Harpster to Letzelter, playing wide near the left side line. Earlier in this session a fumble lost the ball on the 17-yard line after a march of 47 yards.

The touchdown plays were a 12-yard run by Letzelter for the first score, a sneak or "goose" play by Harpster from the one-yard line, an end-around play by Rosenzweig

BILLY GREENWOOD

The Ellis entry, Billy Greenwood, is the only scratch player in the circuit and he holds both the low-inning and high-run records for the season. Although he finished second to Carter last season, Billy is away to a flying start in the present campaign, winning all of his four matches and numbering Carter among his victims. In his first two jousts, Greenwood clicked off 100 points in less than six innings. In the above picture he is shown about to go after a score.

Pro Charges Aired At A. A. U. Confab

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Charges that college athletes in various sections of the country were receiving as much as $150 a month for playing baseball during vacation times were made on the floor of the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union today by L. M. Benedetto, of New Orleans, secretary of the Southern Association.

The charges were made during discussion of an amendment proposed by Gustavus T. Kirby, of New York, former chairman of the American Olympic committee, that local registration committees throughout the organization be authorized to accept athletes as amateurs on certificate from authorities of the colleges and universities in those districts.

The motion was defeated after Benedetto spoke in opposition to the amendment. He was supported by Frank A. Kolf, of Atlantic, who made similar assertions. Others who spoke against the measure were Judge Fred L. Foster, of Cincinnati, and Major Frank H. Biggs, of Boston, representative of the New England Intercollegiate Association, who said only a few colleges in the Boston district had amateur requirements strict enough to satisfy the A. A. U.

Chess Tournament Scheduled Here

Fifteen or more of the best chess players of Pittsburgh and vicinity will battle for the title of Western Pennsylvania champion in an open tournament to be held from December 3 to 25, under the auspices of the Wilkinsburg Chess Club, Wilkinsburg. According to present plans, the winner of this tournament will be matched against the champion of Eastern Pennsylvania for the state title.

M'KECHNIE'S FINE WORK FOR CARDS UNREWARDED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

BILL McKECHNIE and his brilliant leadership, as he drove his way to a pennant for the Cardinals this year, appear to receive ungrateful treatment in the reported action of his St. Louis superiors in removing him from the post he filled so well.

Clever moves and smart plays dotted Skipper Bill's procedure in a race that exacted a strain from the April bell to the October curtain. And then, on the apparent failure to win a game or two in the world series the pilot who was so effective through 154 battles is called to task in such an unexpected manner.

Can it be that the Cardinal owners are so peeved over the loss of the money they had to return for the unplayed fifth game that they soured on the manager of the club?

If the Redbirds had won a game or two of the world series, McKechnie's leadership probably would not be questioned in the opinion of more than one observer. Things are coming to a bad pass in the diamond sport if a manager is dropped for such a trivial shortcoming.

Every National Leaguer who saw the Cards in the series realizes that it was not the same team that came out ahead of the Giants, Cubs and Pirates—three real ball clubs. The men who are in a position to know are now convinced that the Redbirds, having had to fight from April to October, were "shot" when the belated series got under way.

The Yanks, a mile in front for half the season, had one stretch where they were seriously threatened. They shook off this threat in the memorable series with the Athletics at the Yankee Stadium and then rolled in on their own momentum. They were in bad shape physically, but had an ideal spirit and morale in the titular clashes.

But even if the Cardinals had not cracked, McKechnie or any other manager should not be so handled after winning the flag.

Usher, All-America Star, Seriously Ill

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 19.—(INS.)—Edward Usher, Jr., former all-America Michigan halfback, was reported to be seriously ill with influenza today at the Hollywood Athletic Club.

Usher, who is a son of a vice president of the Willys-Overland Corporation at Toledo, O., was said to be confined to his rooms with two doctors and a trained nurse in attendance.

He contracted a severe cold about 10 days ago while practicing football with a high school team. The cold developed into influenza, his doctors said.

MRS. STEFFEN HELPS

MRS. WALTER P. STEFFEN, wife of Carnegie Tech's advisory coach, played an important role in the victory over Notre Dame Saturday. She donned all of the football ornaments and ribbons that she wore when Tech defeated the Irish at Forbes Field two years ago, 19-0. She is not superstitious, but—

CLEVELAND, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Carnegie Tech will play Western Reserve University next year, officials of the University announced yesterday. The game will be played in mid-October, at Dunn Field. It also was announced that Reserve will leave four dates open for intersectional contests.

FEATURE PLAYS IN TECH'S WIN—BY 27-7 SCORE OVER IRISH—IN SOUTH BEND BATTLE

EYTH INTERCEPTS PASS, PAVING WAY FOR SCORE

Arrow indicates Dutch Eyth, Carnegie halfback, intercepting a forward pass by Neimic on the Notre Dame 38-yard line, from which point the Tartans drove to their second touchdown in seven plays, less than five minutes after the start of the battle. Eyth injured a shoulder immediately after this crucial play and had to leave the field in favor of Glenn Moorhead.

NEIMIC THROWN FOR LOSS

Johnny Neimic, the Notre Dame halfback star, is shown above about to be tackled for a loss on an excursion around end early in the game. He was badly injured a short time later in a collision with a teammate and had to be taken out of the game and rushed to a hospital for treatment. He was one of the few Notre Dame players who lived up to his reputation while he was able to play.

KARCIS CRASHES THROUGH LINE

M'CHESNEYTOWN AND WEST VIEW COP BATTLES

By TOM BIRKS

WITH a brilliant day and the greatest crowds of the season on hand, two more teams bit the dust in the race for the mythical independent gridiron championship. McChesneytown's machine rode high over the highly-touted Ambridge Mystics, winning by an 18-to-6 score while West View shot the works at Rainbow Gardens when Mose Kelsh, standing on the Olympic 37-yard line, kicked a beautiful placement, and when that ball sailed between the posts, the Olympics passed out of the picture, for West View won, 3 to 0.

The other two undefeated clubs, East Pittsburgh Firemen and Port Vue Quakers, played a great game, 0-0. Just as this writer figured, the lines were too powerful for the backfields.

OAKMONT VICTORY

The other games found Oakmont flashing into the limelight with a 13 to 7 victory over the Lawrenceville Mohawks, and it seems as if Restelli has his up-river machine functioning perfectly. Bridgeville Firemen and Glendale played a scoreless tie. Linwood defeated Verona, 12 to 0, while the local derby between Venice and Coraopolis also was a scoreless tie.

The battle at Rainbow Gardens found West View outplaying Olympics in every branch of the game. The Iverson team looked bad, especially in the first half. Klinzing did some wonderful ball-carrying in the first and second periods. The Olympic line looked bad against the double and triple passes between Kelsh, Klinzing and Vaughan.

Then, when Regan went into the game, West View got another edge, for he certainly outpunted Newlin. The only score of the game came when Klinzing intercepted one of Newlin's forwards. West View got the ball on its own 40-yard line. Kelsh hit the line for six yards. Klinzing made first down with a four-yard gain. Klinzing then made two more gains, carrying the ball to the 36-yard line. From a perfect placement, Kelsh kicked the three points. The Olympics became dangerous in the final period and had the ball on the West View eight-yard line. Newlin tried to kick for a field goal, but West View blocked it.

The game at Oakmont was the best of the season and was marked by some brilliant line-plunging by McCandless. The Strip aggregation scored in the second period when Ziggy Anderson caught a forward pass and raced over.

RECEIVES FUMBLE, SCORES

Then Stoner picked up a fumble and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. The winning points started when Oakmont marched down the field from its 10-yard line through a series of plunges, off tackle plays and a forward pass, which finished with Ernest Restelli smashing over the line and Arthur Restelli kicking the extra point.

The game was played with the greatest crowd of the season on hand and Oakmont gave its best exhibition this year.

McChesneytown flashed into the limelight by stopping Ambridge in a real battle. The Mystics uncovered one of the best forward-passing attacks flashed in Latrobe in many moons, but a fumble started the trouble for the visitors. Lowdy Adams, classy Latrobe halfback, was hurt in the final minutes.

The battle at East Pittsburgh was a plunging duel between Zoltae and Kalitz, but neither was able to cross the opposing goal line. And again, East Pittsburgh flashed the fact that it has one of the best lines in the district. But it seems that Port Vue is just as good.

Now that Sunday's games are over, West View, Port Vue, East Pittsburgh and McChesneytown are the big four. McChesneytown meets Port Vue next Sunday at Romaine Field, while East Pittsburgh meets the Monessen Olympics, one of the classiest teams that has been seen in the district this fall.

OPEN SEASON TONIGHT

The McKeesport Hirshbergs and the Ray Schneider Club, of the North side, will open the West Penn League season on the latter's floor tonight. The game will be played at Javor Hall with Beggs Snyder officiating.

Tech's Deceptive Attack at Peak

from the 27-yard line and Letzeler's 23-yard pass play, previously mentioned. Every one of them was a smart, decisive scoring play that Notre Dame had no chance to stop.

IRISH LUCKY TO SCORE

Meanwhile Notre Dame's only score resulted from a fumble on the third play of the third quarter, and was the result of a double error by Tech. On the first play after takin. Notre Dame's kickoff on the nine-yard line, Harpster crossed up the Irish by faking an attempt to punt from behind his goal line and with the Notre Dame forwards pouring in on him, coolly tossing a forward pass over left end to a point where Moorhead, the halfback, stood all alone, starting down the field. The ball almost struck Moorhead before he turned and noticed it, and it fell dead at his feet. It appeared as if Glenn was asleep on the play, but the truth of the matter was that he was unable to hear the signal properly because of the prolonged cheering of the stands following the well-placed kickoff. He figured Harpster was going to punt and was headed to prevent a runback. After a yard gain by Karcis, Harpster again went back, intending this time to kick, but Metzinger, the center, who had been badly bumped on the kickoff, still was a bit dazed and made his only bad pass of the day and one of the few he has turned in all season. Harpy had to pick up the ball close to the ground and attempt to run with it. He fumbled as he was tackled and the ball plopped out of his hands, to be recovered by Mullins, the fullback, on the 11-yard line with a clear field the remaining distance for the touchdown.

GREAT GOAL LINE STANDS

Two real scoring chances came Notre Dame's way, but each time Tech, fighting with its back to the goal, fought off the challenge and took the ball. The first time was late in the second quarter, when Carrideo, sub quarterback, made a fine return of a punt to the Tech 42-yard line and Dew, a sub halfback, did some fine line-plunging for two first downs, planting the oval on the 18-yard line. A forward pass carried it to the five-yard line for another first down. Then came a gallant stand by the Plaid. Mullins bucked for one yard. The next play lost a yard and the next another yard. On the final down, a forward pass failed and the crisis was over.

In the last period, a 53-yard run by Jack Elder, the sprinter, a "pinch" player, put Tech in a hole, placing the ball on the 10-yard line. Fine safety play by Harpster prevented a touchdown. Elder was running hard along the left side line. He still had one interferer in front of him, having left the others well behind. It was this interferer's job to take out Harpster and he failed. Plunging himself right on the sideline, Harpster forced both the interferer and Elder to slow down and cut inside and they both lost just enough time to enable Shaughency, the Tech end, to catch Elder from behind and drag him down just outside the 10-yard line. On the next play, Elder again carried the ball on an end run, but he was spilled for an eight-yard loss. A forward pass failed and then one went through to O'Brien, who was stopped one foot short of the goal for first down.

Here, indeed, was tough spot for Tech, but that stalwart wall of red-jerseyed huskies never faltered. Mullins, the fullback, cracked the line and was piled up without a gain. The next play lost three yards. The next was a forward pass that was knocked down, and, on the final down, another pass was tried. It went over the goal line to be intercepted by Harpster for a touchback with not a Notre Dame man near him.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORSE

It is quite likely that but for the fumble that gave Notre Dame its touchdown at the start of the second half Tech would have increased its score by another touchdown or two. That tally gave the Irish renewed hope and for a time they battled courageously to the cheering accompaniment of their partisans in the stands, who seemingly never gave up hope that, by some miracle, Rockne's men still would come through. It was not until the mighty Karcis crashed through on a series of plays from the first down that carried the ball 20 yards and left a trail of wreck and ruin in his wake that the Irish subsided after this break.

A CLASSIC BATTLE

Was it a football game—and how! I don't expect to see another like it in a long, long time. There was Notre Dame primed to get even for that 13-0 trimming at Forbes Field two years ago, and with Coach Rockne this time on the bench in person, not a movie. And there was Tech with only four veterans of that battle of '26 and seven sophomores making up its lineup, and playing a game that was an inspiration to behold. There was Notre Dame, rated as one of the most resourceful elevens, year after year, being outplayed at its own type of game, and outplayed to a frazzle and lucky to break into the scoring column. Rain falling for two days and coming down at its heaviest for an hour just before the teams took the field and continuing in a drizzle intermittently throughout the battle without affecting in the least the deadly effectiveness of the smashing, crashing, quick-striking Tech offensive. Yes, sir, it was a football game—a classic.

STEFFEN INSPIRES MEN

The good Judge Steffen did plenty of hard work from the time he came over from Chicago to join the Tech squad at Elkhart, Ind., Friday morning until after the victory was in and he left with his wife and two of his sons for his home. The first thing he did was to go into a huddle with Head Coach Bob Waddell. Then he went out with the squad for a practice on the high school field. Then he had a chalk talk with the players Friday evening and another session with them Saturday morning in which he ranted and raved and worked himself into a frenzy telling them they were going to beat Notre Dame and how they were going to do it, and his masterpiece followed in the dressing room just before the team took the field. He had the players worked up to concert pitch and it was no wonder they clicked from the start.

CREDIT FOR WADDELL

In all of the praise of the Tartans for their fine work throughout the season, one man who gets little enough credit is not to be overlooked. He is Coach Waddell, former Peabody High School and Bucknell College star, who has the job of preparing the squad for the battles from the start to the finish of each week. Because of his duties as a judge in Chicago, Steffen is able to be with his players only over the week-ends, aside from a month at the start of each campaign, which he spends in conditioning them and laying the foundation for the season. It is up to Waddell to drill them in the plays and defense and otherwise prepare them for the games and turn them over to Steffen ready for the battle. The results show just how well he has functioned in this important capacity. A little bow, if you please, in the direction of Sir Robert Waddell.

ROSENZWEIG, KARCIS STAR

Teddy Rosenzweig, one of the best baseball pitchers in this section, having starred for the Uniontal and other teams, was one of the heroes of Carnegie's victory at South Bend. He caught Harpster's pass for the long run to the 12-yard line on the second scrimmage play of the game, fought his way 27 yards to the second touchdown on an end-around play and sparkled otherwise all afternoon on both offense and defense. He will be heard from in the next two seasons when it comes to the matter of selecting all-star players.

And don't think John (Locomotive) Karcis didn't get going in the Notre Dame battle. He just about frolicked to his heart's content, causing a Western Conference scribe to remark that if McLain, the highly-touted Indian fullback of the Iowa eleven, is an all-American fullback, Karcis is a whole team of them. "The entire McLain family couldn't gain as much ground in a week as Karcis can in an afternoon," was his observation.

Capt. Harpster's brilliant work already has been highly stressed in the glowing descriptions of the battle flashed from the press stand. He was under the scrutiny of critics from New York, Chicago, Cleveland and other spots and just about clinched his all-America status with them.

LEDIGARD VICTOR

PARIS, Nov. 19.—(AP.)—Ledigard, belonging to the Modest Stable of Gustave Beauvois, won the Montgomery stakes, feature race on yesterday's card at Auteuil, from a field of 12 starters, all much older and more experienced in racing.

Tech Eleven Nears National Title

concede Nebraska much of a chance against the Army this week.

Saturday's results just about wrote finis to Middle Western football theory. Big and powerful, with tremendous strength, both Missouri and Nebraska demonstrated a lack of drive and co-ordination, looked and played plain dumb football, and in the case of the Huskers, were all too ready to fall back into a panicky defensive attitude when the light but savagely aggressive Panthers roared their challenge. Anytime a team with the weight of the Cornhuskers goes through an entire ball game without making a single first down it cannot be ranked with the top-notch elevens.

Carnegie has only New York University to overcome now to insure the Tartans getting the first claim at the Eastern and national title. Notre Dame was comparatively easy for the Plaid and Judge Steffen's team is the most feared and the most talked of eleven in the land this day. New York showed fine spirit in its first major contest since the unfortunate Georgetown game by whipping Missouri and will be no push-over for the Pittsburgh Scots.

The Middle West, unable to score a single intersectional decision, couldn't even come to satisfactory agreement among its own people. Iowa entered the game with Wisconsin almost as heavy a favorite as were the Irish of Notre Dame and Nebraska and came out with the short end of the deal.

Indiana turned in another upset by taking Northwestern. Illinois did what was expected and ran over poor old Chicago. Other Big Ten teams scored more or less impressive triumphs at the expense of outsiders. In the East, West Virginia found the going too rocky at Washington and bowed to battered but determined Georgetown. The Hill Toppers staged a remarkable comeback after the blow taken at Albany last week, when Tech ended the Littlemen's hopes of an undefeated season and first claim to the Eastern title. The Mountaineers had been scooting along in great fashion prior to striking Washington, having cut down West Virginia Wesleyan, Pitt, Wash-Lee, Haskell and Fordham in a row.

Wash-Jeff refused to concede the supremacy of the Shavley-Hangartner Bucknell machine and battled the Bisons to a scoreless tie at Johnstown. The Bisons were established prime favorites over the lowly Presidents, who have yet to win a major game. Andy Kerr pulled his boys together and outsmarted the Lewisburg eleven.

Elmer Layden's Dukes will be tied with Geneva for the Tri-State Conference title in the event Westminster beats the Covenanters next week. The Bluffites took over Thiel very neatly in their first appearance on the Pitt Stadium gridiron, the outcome being 13 to 7.

as 27 points against a Rockne Notre Dame eleven. The Generals beat the Irish 27 to 0 in 1925. No larger score has been made against Notre Dame since November 4, 1916, when the Army won at West Point, 30 to 10.

UNLESS negotiations now pending fall through, Col. Tillinghast L. Huston, former partner of Col. Jacob Ruppert in the ownership of the New York American League Club, may come back to baseball as a National League magnate. It is reported that Huston is endeavoring to close a deal involving the purchase of the McKeever interests in the Brooklyn club. Brooklyn fans say they would welcome any sort of deal that might change club conditions, complaining that under the present state of affairs nothing is done from year to year to bolster the team with new material, while numerous young players of promise are allowed to escape to other outfits in the majors.*

THE SAME Flatbush fans are now preparing to watch with interest the experiment that Manager Bill Carrigan of the Boston Americans is going to make with two Dodger cast-offs, Infielders Jerry Standaert and Bobby Barrett. They were turned adrift by the Brooklyn club a year ago, but Carrigan has brought them up again from the minors.

Col. T. L. Huston

"Standaert can play any position in the infield," Carrigan says. "At bat he is poison, and just the man we need. Barrett is a corking hitter and has developed into a good third baseman. We need hitters, and these youngsters are among the best we have dug up in the last two years."

THE DUKES kept up their fine record Saturday by giving another impressive performance, in which they registered a neat 13-to-7 win over Stan Berkman and his mates from Thiel College. It was Thiel's third visit of the season to Pittsburgh, and its third defeat, but at least Tommy Holleran's lads hold the distinction of having scored more points against Carnegie Tech than any other team that has faced the Plaid.

Saturday was another fruitless day for Wash-Jeff and Penn State. The Presidents have won only two games this season, and the Nittany Lions only three. On the last six Saturdays the combined efforts of the two teams have resulted in only one victory out of their total of 12 games. W. & J. lost four and tied two, and Penn State lost four, won one and tied one.

Wall Street Quotations — Stocks Rush Up

Forbes

Gambling Fever Overruns Country—Trade Is Active.

—By B. C. FORBES—

Wilder than ever.

THAT describes the latest frenzied speculation in stocks. Anyone who suggests that some day it will come to an end is vehemently branded as a traitor, an unbeliever in this glorious country.

But, of course, every bull market in history had an end. This being the most sensational bull market ever indulged in, it will be logical for it to have a corresponding termination.

THAT the public has been lashed into an excited frame of mind is clear. The market's multi-millionaire bull leaders have succeeded probably beyond even their own extremest expectations in marking up quotations and in fostering the speculative mania throughout the country. Each succeeding day emphasizes that the public has taken the lot in its teeth and is running wild.

The public's action recalls the seller of a blind mule who, when indignantly told by the unsuspecting buyer that he had discovered that the mule was blind because it ran around bumping into everything, replied "That mule ain't blind. He just doesn't give a ——."

Much of the current buying of stocks is sheer gambling. Buyers don't give a hoot about intrinsic values. They buy in the hope that their stock or stocks will be "given a whirl" by the bull pools. It has become as thrilling as roulette or horse racing. You make your selections and then eagerly watch whether you have picked winners. And you usually don't have to wait long for action in one direction or the other.

THE reason almost unanimously assigned for the biggest day's trading of all—6,700,000 shares on Friday—was amusing. Brokers' loans went to the highest peak ever touched. To anyone who had not lost his head, such a development was no occasion for throwing hats in the air and whooping up stocks more recklessly than ever.

But, bless your heart, the latest expansion in loans was a mere trifle contrasted with the unparalleled expansion of previous weeks. Therefore, why shouldn't the climbing of loans to new heights by only a little be made the occasion for unrestrained rejoicing and the wholesale smashing of high records for stock quotations?

When that species of reasoning passes muster in Wall Street, the only deduction that can be drawn is that anything imaginable or unimaginable can happen. That whatever happens can send stocks only in one direction—skywards—is the firmly rooted, widespread assumption.

Would it be lese majeste to reflect that even the best and most willing horse can be ridden to death?

DEVELOPMENTS off the floor of the Stock Exchange have been favorable on the whole.

Money rates have ruled around 6½ per cent for call loans (against 8½ per cent a year ago) and 6½ to 7 per cent for time loans (against 4 per cent to 4½ per cent a year ago). Employment reports continue gratifying notwithstanding that we are entering the season when employment normally falls off. Railway traffic compares favorable with the quiet period of a year ago, but is below the 1926 comparison.

Grain prices have at least held their own during the last week, and so has cotton. Bank clearings, inflated by unparalleled stock speculation, show a big gain—stock dealings on the New York exchange have this year exceeded 770,000,000 shares compared with less than 500,000,000 shares for the corresponding period last year. The steel industry is still busy at firm prices. The motor industry is exhibiting wonderful vitality. So are nonferrous metals. Oil authorities look for gradual improvement. Building is up at certain centers, down at others, but the 1928 total will be very satisfactory.

Retail trade is spotty, due to weather conditions. But holiday business is confidently expected to reach new totals.

FINANCE and business are counting upon helpful cooperation from President Hoover.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Airbrake Goes Higher | New York Bond Market

FURTHER ADVANCE IN CARNEGIE METALS HERE

Carnegie Metals led the market again in the early session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today while fuel issues and miscellaneous industrials held around the prices prevailing Saturday.

Buying of Carnegie was resumed at the opening and the stock moved up steadily as traders added to the holdings and new buyers came into the market, attracted by the recent strength in the issue. Several hundred shares were handled in the first few minutes and this volume was expanded as the session progressed.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass maintained a firm tone and sold again at the best level since the 10 per cent stock dividend was deducted from the market price. The stock was scarce in the early market and only a few shares came out at the opening quotation of $70 a share.

Westinghouse Air Brake went ahead in the New York market, but the issue was very quiet here. Bids and offers, however, followed the course of the stock on the "big board." Westinghouse Electric displayed a somewhat hesitant tone as the stock was called upon to absorb further selling as a result of its recent sensational advance of more than 25 points.

Blaw Knox was off a fraction from last week's close. National Fireproofing preferred was steady around 25, the best price of the current movement. Armstrong Cork was steady around 60.

National Fireproofing preferred developed strength during the afternoon session, selling up to a new high on the movement. Buying was accompanied by further rumors that company plans to declare a dividend on the stock before the end of the year.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—With an increase of 1,333,000 bushels in the United States visible supply, wheat prices here tended downward most of the time today. The increase contrasted with a decrease both last week and a year ago. Liquidating sales of December delivery of wheat were a contributing bearish factor. Estimates that the European corn crop is 104,000,000 bushels less than last year and is below half of the 1926 production helped to steady the corn market as the day drew to an end.

Wheat closed unsettled, ½ to ⅝c net lower, corn ¼ to ⅝c off, oats a shade to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 20c.

Decreasing stocks of wheat at Liverpool, as well as advices of unfavorable harvest weather in Argentina, received first attention of Chicago wheat traders today, but the bullish effect of such advices failed to hold well in the face of enlarged selling here. It was pointed out in this connection that world shipments of wheat continue heavy, and have approached nearly to record figures.

Corn bull weather reports dominated the corn market much of the time today, especially an official prediction of clear skies ahead. Earlier, this influence was prevailing moist condition unfavorable for the progress of husking and hauling. Meanwhile, arrivals of corn in Chicago today were liberal, 329 cars against 88 cars a year ago.

MILLIONS SAVED BY TRADE BUREAU

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce saved $15,000,000 during its last fiscal year for 800 firms who voluntarily reported known sales and savings directly traceable to the organization's activities. This was an average of $18,000 per firm. It represents only a small portion of the value of this branch of the Department of Commerce, since all firms did not report results and in many cases the benefits were indirect.

The bureau currently serves about 22,000 firms, Dr. Julius Klein, director, says in his annual report. On 3,000,000 occasions, or nearly 10,000 each business day, the bureau rendered some specific service to the American public. This was five times as many as it performed in the public's behalf during the 1921-22 fiscal year, the first under its specialized commodity plan of operation.

The report points out that during this time the average cost of each service performed has dropped from $2.75 to less than $1.50.

UNTIL 1923 the bureau's efforts were devoted entirely to the furtherance of export trade, but since that time it has turned increasing attention to the problems of domestic business. This governmental co-operation with business, Dr. Klein believes, has played a large part in the steady expansion of our trade both at home and abroad.

The importance of export trade to national prosperity can be seen in several facts brought forth by the report. From one-seventh to one-eighth of our total farm production is marketed abroad. This represents the work of about 1,250,000 people. Of the output of factories, eight to nine per cent is exported. This represents the production of nearly 1,000,000 industrial workers.

If our export trade suddenly should cease about 2,250,000 people would be added to the ranks of unemployed. When it is remembered that a large share of these are responsible for the support of families it can be seen that foreign trade can mean the difference between prosperity and depression.

AMERICAN industry is going steadily forward rather than backward in finding new markets for its products. In the face of vigorous competition, our exports of finished manufactures have steadily advanced until last year they reached the huge total of $2,061,000,000, an increase of four per cent over the previous year and of 70 per cent over 1921-22.

Many specific instances of business obtained by American exporters through the co-operation of the bureau's foreign offices are outlined by Dr. Klein. Among these were the sale of 135 automobiles in Italy, $200,000 worth of druggists' supplies in Egypt, $75,000 worth of electrical equipment in Canada and $70,000 worth of paints in South Africa.

A MASSACHUSETTS firm obtained street paving contracts from Argentine municipalities amounting to $1,500,000 as a result of recommendations made by the Buenos Aires office, which also aided two New York firms in securing a municipal building contract for $2,700,000.

During the past fiscal year the bureau, in co-operation with the National Retail Credit Association, began a preliminary survey of retail credit, which promises to yield some important information concerning installment and credit buying.

Amendment Would Abate Lame Ducks in Congress

The great annual farce in American politics will start when Congress reassembles on December 3.

Is the Senate and the House going to consist of the members we elected November 6?

Not at all. The senators and congressmen we elected will not take office until 13 months after we chose them, namely, in December, 1929.

In the meantime, the old Senate and Congress will go on functioning, in spite of the fact that a considerable part of them was repudiated by the people.

There are 14 senators and 71 congressmen who will continue making laws for us after being theoretically supplanted by the ballots of the people. We cannot get rid of them until next March 4.

This ridiculous system is the reverse of democracy, with the "lag" of more than a year in replacing the "lame ducks" we voted to get rid of in the November election.

Every two years we have one of these lame duck sessions of Congress, running only from the first Monday in December to the following March 4, when the Congress expires.

In the short session, it is almost impossible to pass any new legislation of importance; the routine supply bills take up most of the time. If general legislation is attempted, it is subject to filibusters, log-rolling and deals.

Congress hits on all six cylinders only once in two years.

We need the Norris amendment to the Constitution abolishing lame ducks and short sessions by providing that the Congress elected in November shall meet on the first Monday of the following January each year, and continue in session until the country's business is transacted.

The Norris amendment has repeatedly passed the Senate. Republican reactionaries have kept it from coming to a vote in the House until last session, when, through their obstruction, it narrowly missed obtaining the necessary two-thirds vote.

Let's have it passed in the Senate and put up to the House again.

Greater City in Sight; Now Work for Charter

Since election day, two weeks ago, Pittsburgh has been more or less puzzled as to whether the Pittsburgh Metropolitan District amendment to the state constitution carried. At first the only counties known to have favored this amendment were Allegheny and Philadelphia. As returns filtered in it later was revealed that a few other counties gave a majority for the proposal, and it now appears that the votes that have not been accounted for as yet will not be sufficient to overturn the majority for the Greater Pittsburgh measure that is now indicated.

So you may feel that you are warranted to take the optimistic view that Pittsburgh is in a good way to become the fourth city in population in the United States—is that now, in effect, as far as the amendment is concerned. To become so actually, a charter for a consolidated city will have to be granted by the Legislature.

Then, we quote from the language of the amendment, "the said charter shall be submitted to the electors of said county at a special election to be provided therein. If the majority of the electors voting thereon, in the county as a whole, and at least two-thirds of all the electors voting thereon in each of a majority of the cities, boroughs and townships thereof, vote in the affirmative, the act shall take effect for the whole county."

We may assume, judging by the state election returns, that the amendment has passed. Now all we have to do is get a charter acceptable to the cities, boroughs and townships. It is not too early to begin the preparatory work with that end in view. We know there is not unanimity throughout the county on the matter. We know that we must have the support of at least two-thirds of the voters in more than half of the divisions of the county, and a majority vote in the county as a whole. There will be need for missionary work.

Tech's Notre Dame Win Is Notable Victory

Carnegie Tech's defeat of Notre Dame's formidable football eleven at South Bend, Ind., Saturday, was a notable achievement as well as being another step in Tech's steady march toward the gridiron championship of the East. "The Irish," as Knute Rockne's proteges sometimes are referred to on the sporting pages, had not met defeat on their home gridiron in 23 years, according to report, and that tradition was expected to render the admitted strength of the Indiana team more effective. Hence, Tech, in achieving triumph, not only disproved the "dope" of most experts, but proved conclusively that its team is made up of the fiber that constitutes real heroes of the popular fall sport.

Tech went into the game with something worth while fighting for—a record of having been neither defeated nor tied during the present season, and it must be said that it fought nobly to keep its record spotless. It had no "set-up," either. True, Notre Dame had met defeat this season, but it had developed into a great team with the traditional November condition of near perfection.

This makes twice that Tech has confounded the experts in their opinions of the outcome as to its games with Notre Dame. Two years ago, when it was thought not to have a chance, it delivered one of the greatest upsets of the season by piling up a score of 19 to 0 against the Irish.

This year the Carnegie Tartans have a heavy line and fleet, powerful backs, yet the experts seem not to have considered that fact. It is a great football team and should round out the season with a perfect score of games won.

Hail, Tech!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

TO YOU, advancing age seems a tragedy.

Well, it does more or less to most people, if they are truthful.

You don't want to become a public charge, nor a family care.

You should think of this seriously enough to make some plans for your future when you are able to work.

Make some preparations that will take the burden from those near and dear while there is yet time to do so.

That you have troublesome thoughts now may be due to your neglect in days gone by of insurance or other means of provision for the future.

But you did not want to practice economy to pay premiums.

Perhaps your income was not sure enough to enable you to obligate yourself.

You had a good time, though, in your most productive years.

If you had tried harder to save and not to spend you might be easy now.

It is your own fault if it is too late, but whatever you do, don't drive out that joy that ought to be yours because you are alive and still in good health.

Tales That Are Told

Little Ailment

A LAZY laborer who frequently stayed away from his work was told by his employer to produce a doctor's certificate the next time he was absent.

The laborer once again stayed away, and went to the local doctor in order to get a certificate. But the doctor knew his man, and drew a line through the word "ailment" with his fountain pen.

"What's this?" asked the employer some time later. "No ailment?"

The laborer was startled, but only for a second.

"Man," he said solemnly, "dae ye no see I've had a wee stroke?"

Too True

THEY were watching the cars of the scenic railway go hurtling round the circular track at the fair.

"Mike," said the first Irishman, 'Oi would like a go on that, begorra Oi would!"

But his friend was not so keen.

"Sure, Pat, don't ye go on that," he returned. 'I saw Flannigan on it yesterday, and he had two bucks' worth o' rides, and in the end he got off at the very place he got on at.

"So Oi said, 'Flannigan, you've spent all that money, but where have you been?'"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

THE guy that goes into a restaurant and orders a meal and then walks out without paying for it has always been a sure-fire joke. It seems so kinda clever of anybody to put that over. There's a lot of stories about how it's been done, but this is one of them.

After filling himself full of good food, the customer put on his natty hat and overcoat and started to go out.

"Here," says the proprietor, a guy that was a former prize-fighter and twice as big as the customer, "ain't you going to pay your bill? It's three dollars."

"I'm awful sorry," the customer says, "but I ain't got a cent. No, sir. I'm broke. No use making a fuss about it, you know, because you can't get blood out of a turnip, can you?"

"Well, no," says the retired pug, "but I'm going to find out whether you're a turnip or not!"

My Calendar

MY calendar is never made
From reckonings dull and dry
Of suns and planets as they strayed
Across the boundless sky.

Not so do I compute the days
Of Summer, Autumn, Spring;
I only know where Phyllis strays
The flowers start blossoming.

And when she wanders far away
The world grows very drear;
Though calendars may call it May,
Winter is with me here.

My calendar is thus, apart
From that which science knows,
And reckoned wholly by my heart
As Phyllis comes or goes!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

JIM'S unravelling—going to pieces like that old-fashioned underwear that came unknit if you pulled the first stitch.

Eighteen months ago Jim was as promising a youngster as you'd want to meet. Hard-working, honest, reliable, gentlemanly. Had a fine position as auto salesman—was right in line for a big promotion. Then he got in with that fast crowd and started drinking a little, and now he's on the skids.

No, he isn't a drunkard yet. Anyone can see the evil of being an out-and-out drunkard. Jim's just unraveling. It's harder to see the evils of that. Most of us don't even know when we are unraveling. Until some day we wake up and find that our character has gone to pieces.

Jim doesn't know he's unraveling. He thinks he's still the same fine chap that he was 18 months ago. He can't understand why he hasn't been given that promotion. He spends a good deal of time blaming his employers and being sorry for himself, and telling his friends that a good, hard-working young fellow never is appreciated. And his friends agree with him and tell him to buck up and have another little drink. Which he does.

Jim's employers, however, know the other side of the story.

They know why Jim hasn't received that promotion. They know he's unraveling.

They know that in these last 18 months Jim's ambition and good nature and reliability have dropped from him, bit by bit. He has become lazy and edgey and soft. He's always a little late at his work. He's always making excuses. He snaps people up or gets too confidential with them. He's a clock watcher. The firm is getting just about three good hours of work a day out of Jim—not always that. It won't be long before Jim will be looking for another job and wondering why he was fired and blaming everyone but himself.

Unraveling—

Lots of things can do that to a man beside drink.

And it can happen to women as well as men.

Too much comfort will do it.

Too much love will do it.

Success will do it.

And the worst of it is, we so seldom know it's happening.

Watch yourself—

MAYBE YOU'RE UNRAVELING.

REINDEER IN ALPS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THROUGH the instrumentality of man pre-history meets history on the Alps of Savoy. One of the favorite subjects of the artists who when the last Ice Age was slowly withdrawing pictured the life of their time on bones and cavern walls was the reindeer, then an inhabitant of all Western Europe. The great glaciers retreated to the Far North, and the reindeer followed them, loving the neighborhood of ice and snow and the crisp Arctic vegetation that rejoices in the glitter of the frost. Under a warmer sunshine Europe became the home of great nations and empires; cities grew up where the reindeer had once fed, and where the mammoth had lumbered over the river flats, and the very men who had known these animals and hunted them with their flint-headed spears and arrows were forgotten by their sophisticated successors.

In Sight of the Old Home.

Now, after all the uncounted thousands of years that have elapsed since the departure of the reindeer, and since the last of the mammoths perished in the frozen marshes of Siberia, the reindeer, whose race, like man's, outlives the ages, is brought back to look down from the still snowy Alps upon the changed lands in which their ancestors flourished, brought back with friendly cares by that same two-legged race whose cunning, savage forebears were more terrible in their mysterious power than the cave bear or the sabre-tooth tiger.

It is in the neighborhood of Megeve, in Haute-Savoie, where silver foxes are raised, that Mr. Morand-Armand, the mayor of Megeve, in 1926 began the experiment of introducing reindeer from the far north. A pair, male and female, and a gelding were brought. The next year were young reindeer born in the new Alpine home. The air and the food of these mountains suited them, for was there not something ancestral here? The young reindeer became instant favorites of the children and of the skiers. They willingly drew light sleds over the snows, for, since their retreat to the north at the close of the Ice Age, the reindeer have learned slavery (called domestication) at the hands of men in far northern climes.

Last June M. Morand-Arnaud took three of his reindeer up into the mountains to an elevation of more than 5,000 feet and turned them loose to feed for themselves among the scattered sapins, where lichens abound on the rocky soil amidst the snow-patches. This was like setting plates loaded with hot buckwheat cakes and pitchers of maple syrup before a Maine woodsman marooned in a breakfast-cereal hotel. When the Mayor and his enthusiastic young friends went to visit the liberated reindeer (who nevertheless had bells on their necks, together with short halters—for where is absolute freedom while man rules?), they had ascended to a height approaching 8,000 feet and were well fed and happy in their imitation polar paradise. Yet they were willing to receive the caresses of their visitors, though in some ways they bore themselves less conventionally.

Bible Passages

Wisdom and Folly

A WISE man's heart is at his right hand; but a fool's heart at his left.

Yea, also, when he that is a fool walketh by the way, his wisdom faileth him, and he saith to every man that he is a fool.

If the spirit of the ruler rise up against thee, leave not thy place; for yielding pacifieth great offences.

There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, as an error which proceedeth from the ruler:

Folly is set in great dignity, and the rich sit in low places.

I have seen servants upon horses, and princes walking as servants upon the earth.

He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it; and whoso breaketh an hedge, a serpent shall bite him.

Whoso removeth stones shall be hurt therewith; and he that cleaveth wood shall be endangered thereby.

If the iron be blunt, and he do not whet the edge, then must he put to more strength; but wisdom is profitable to direct.

Surely the serpent will bite without enchantment; and a babbler is no better.

The words of a wise man's mouth are gracious; but the lips of a fool will swallow up himself.

The beginning of the words of his mouth is foolishness; and the end of his talk is mischievous madness.

A fool also is full of words; a man cannot tell what shall be; and what shall be after him, who can tell Him?

Oh, These Women!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A LOS ANGELES woman and her husband were divorced just before election, because she told him Herbert Hoover was the better man for President.

Now that he knows how many she has on her side, a reconciliation might be brought about. No man would want a quarrel with THAT many people.

In order to wear real diamonds at the opera, Chicago ladies are followed by detectives. Now if the ladies who are obliged to wear paste jewelry would have detectives follow them, no one could tell the difference.

Women who ride in dirigibles are informing other women via the newspapers how to dress for such trips. Lady Hay told it, in one word. "Warm."

A Los Angeles man, suing for divorce, says that his wife was "sunshine and roses" on some days and "tornadoes and cyclones" on others.

What does he expect to find? He HAD everything.

There are 25 wives in this country paying alimony to husbands whom the courts deemed worthy of it.

Now is the time for all women to come to the aid of all women. If you don't watch a diabolical thing like that, it is likely to become an Eighteenth Amendment before we women know it. And you know what you can do about a thing that has become an Eighteenth Amendment!

A woman in San Raphael, Cal., sued for divorce because her husband wouldn't hold converse with her. He didn't talk with her for a year.

Probably she didn't hit on the right subject.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early up and received Gene Tunney's wedding announcement and to drive to Sing Sing with a friend to visit a prisoner, but waited at the gates, such experiences affecting me with a melancholy. And there is a dry, sad odor about a prison, too, that is haunting.

So to Dr. Campbell, my dentist, who must extract more teeth and tells me I shall never be able to eat corn on the cob again. And in low spirits to petty tasks and what with a great sighing wind through the town spent a miserable afternoon.

In the evening to a dinner planned for Edgar Wallace, Britain's most prolific playwright and novelist, but he did not arrive so we ate without him. Later to the opera hearing music that stirred me not at all, the only genuine relish for it seemingly in the galleries. To bed.

Stephen Vincent Benet and William Rose Benet are new star drift in the literary firmament, poets of distinction and brothers. There is a sister, too, who fashions verse. Stephen Benet's "John Brown's Body" in blank verse has been a literary sensation of the season. The brothers are of direct Spanish descent, distinguished by their shyness and their refusal to attend "literary teas."

Manhattan's most old-fashioned store is John Daniell & Sons on lower Broadway near Wanamaker's. It clings to its ancient traditions with scarcely a concession to the new. And prospers. The original founder and sons are gone. The grandsons carry on.

No flapper clerks with rouged lips and pencilled eyebrows meet customers. The salesladies are those with lengthened skirts and hair coiffed in mid-Victorian fashion. For years Navajo rugs—not those made in Jersey—have been featured in their window displays.

The telephones remain those of light oak with swan-necked projecting mouthpiece and a crank. The art department remains a picture gallery and the prints are those of the old masters with never a futuristic or modernistic note to relieve the antiquity. The elevator man sports a derby.

When not engaged, the saleswomen knit or crochet. There is a pleasing cordiality but none of the gushing "Madam" greeting of uptown stores. No imperious and frock-coated floorwalkers lift supercilious eyelids. Patrons can buy dollar umbrellas and cotton stockings, if they so desire. There is a warming comfort about it all.

There is a store in Brooklyn, too, recalling hallowed days agone. Those wire baskets that glide around, carrying merchandise and change, to the yank of a rope, are still in use.

Boldly proclaimed on a West Forty-Sixth street cafe menu is: "Real Draught Hoboken Beer—40 cents a seidel." But those tempted say it lacks the hefty Hoboken wallop which is touted among those who know as a beaut.

A Broadway rounder reports the only "real thing" they serve in the night club belt this season is a subpena.

One of the department stores has a psychoanalyst who consults with applicants for prospective jobs. And the silly season is now in full swing.

Says a New York society weekly: "There is a growing belief, fostered by the boys themselves in sly puffery, that the columnists of the town are real members of the literati. After seeing many of them close up we wonder how they satisfy their artistic yearnings?"

It must be told, some of us gaze at canvases by Monet, others are enraptured by Rachmaninoff preludes and a few of us just skip about blithly playing leapfrog over fire plugs. But we have more fun.

RIGHT ANGLES

By Alexander Cairns

BLESSED is the man with a grateful protege.

More blessed is the man who, like Daniel O'Connell, has a nation as a protege.

Philanthropy to an individual is human. Philanthropy to millions is divine.

It is beautiful to pass out of the world leaving behind one lonely heart who will for years to come decorate one's little green mound in God's acre.

It is godlike to make one's final denouement in the deluge of a nation's tears and thus leave a vacant chair at every domestic table in the land.

And so we count a man's greatness by the number of coaches in his funeral cortege.

Tell me how many firesides mourn his passing and I will give you the caliber of the man.

There is a kinship here between the great patriot and the great scholar; the former touches a myriad of human hearts and the latter a myriad of branches of learning.

Each is great because of the multiplicity of his sympathies.

Great indeed is the man high enough to be a statesman and low enough to touch the soul of peasantry.

He reminds one of the great God who measures the ocean in the hollow of his hand and yet marks the sparrow's fall.

And herein lies the saving grace of the statesman's ambition. This redeems him from political littleness. He lives and strives to multiply himself in millions of human hearts.

He hopes to incarnate philanthropy and utilize the functions of his high office to sublimate the commonplaces of a nation's constituency.

Some deal with ones; some with millions.
